SITUATION NOW SIMILAR TO 1860

Experience of Abraham Lincoln Possibly Recalled
by Joseph Cannon.

ANOTHER PARALLEL IS NOTED

The Name of Oglesby Figured in the Lincoln Campaign and Also at Present.

[Special Dispatch.]

Springfield, Ill., November 12.—In coming to Springfield and opposing that provision of the proposed primary election law that provided for the selection of delegates to the national convention of delegates to the national convention at party primaries, "Uncle Joe" Cannon possibly called to mind the experience of Abraham Lincoln and the stirring events of 1860. It is stating the fact none too forcibly to say that if the delegates to the Republican national convention of 1860 had been chosen haphazard by a plurality vote at a party primaries, instead of by a convention, Abraham Lincoln, in all probability, would not have been nominated for president that year. "Uncle Joe" Cannon may, as is alleged, have fear of a "divided delegation" next year. But Lincoln had a similar fear in 1860, and frankly confessed his alarm. He knew that if Illinois did not go to the Chicago convention with a solid delegation, and one that would stand resolutely by him from beginning to end, he would have small chance of being nominated for president.

The situation of Illinois in 1860, with respect to presidential politics, was strikingly similar to the situation in 1907. Illinois had a presidential candidate. The masses of his party in the state were for him. Yet conditions were such that there was danger of an eastern candidate getting some of the delegates from Illinois. It is a most interesting coincidence that the name of Oglesby figures conspicuously in both years. Representative John Oglesby becomes sponsor for a bill that wipes out all conventions. Yet if there had been no state convention in 1860, his father, Richard J. Oglesby, would not have been able by one of the finest coups ever executed in a political contest, to have crystallized Lincoln sentiment in the state convention and to send a solid and enthusiastic delegation to Chicago, bound by ironclad instructions for the man from Illinois.

Seward Easily the Leader

William H. Seward of New York was easily the leading candidate for the Republican nomination for president. He had been governor of New York, the greatest state in the Union, he had almost completed a second term in the United States Senate; he had been conspicuous in the compromise legislation of 1850; he had fought the Kansas-Nebraska bill of 1854; he had become the exponent of the "higher law," and discussing the Dred Scott decision in 1857, he had announced the "irrepressible conflict." The whole country knew Seward; he was a master politician, and he had an organization that extended to every state that was to be represented at Chicago; and all in all he seemed the logical and inevitable nominee of his party for president.

Lincoln Sees Menace

The Seward movement made considerable headway in the north end of the state, where many county conventions either refrained from endorsing Lincoln or openly eulogizing Seward. In the south end of the state the Seward people were ardently encouraging the candidacy of Edward Bates of Missouri. On February 9, 1860, Lincoln wrote Norman B. Judd a letter in which he said:

"I am not in a position where it would hurt much for me not to be nominated on the national ticket, but I am where it would hurt some for me not to get the Illinois delegates. What I expected when I wrote the letter to Messrs. Dole and others is now happening. Your discomfited assailants are most bitter against me, and they will, for revenge upon me, try to the Bates egg in the south, and in the Seward egg in the north, and go far toward squeezing me out in the middle with nothing. Can you not help me a little in this matter in your end of the vineyard?"

Lincoln looked forward to the state convention with many misgivings. The convention was to be held at Decatur, May 9. The "Seward egg" promised to hatch an unpleasantly large brood of delegates. But some things were happening of which even Lincoln was not advised—things to be tremendously important in ultimate results.

There lived in Decatur in 1860 a brilliant young lawyer and politician of the name of Richard J. Oglesby. "Dick" Oglesby had made the acquaintance of Lincoln when a mere boy; he had been an ardent admirer of Lincoln and was for him for president with all that vehement, rugged enthusiasm that distinguished the Oglesby of after years.

Oglesby Sees Possibilities

"Dick" Oglesby was astute, far-seeing; he had imagination, and Lincoln's magnificent possibilities as a popular candidate for president loomed large in his mind. He was acquainted with Lincoln's early life, his lowly origin, his rise from poverty. He knew that out on the Sangamon bottom, thirty years before, Lincoln, with the aid of John Hanks, had split rails and built a fence. Gov. Oglesby, a few months before his death in 1898, related to the writer the story of his strategy to "kill" the Seward boom, and commit the state unreservedly and unitedly to Lincoln. Oglesby, like Lincoln, foresaw the danger of a divided delegation, and he proposed to do something that would make the delegation solidly and enthusiastically for Lincoln.

So one day he hitched up a horse, and, accompanied by old John Hanks (still a Democrat, but a "great friend of Ab") drove out to the Sangamon bottom. John Hanks found the old fence—the identical black walnut and honeylocust rails that he had helped Lincoln make in 1830. Two of the rails Oglesby tied underneath his buggy and dragged back to town. Passersby thought there had been a break-down; Oglesby offered no explanation, and old John Hanks was profoundly silent. The rails were carefully put away in Oglesby's barn. Nobody was taken into the secret. But when the convention got under way, and at a moment that had been carefully prearranged, there appeared at the door of the wigwam an old man with white whiskers, bearing aloft a strange banner. "Gentlemen of the convention," said Oglesby, "there is a man outside, an old Democrat, who wishes to make a contribution to the convention." Then in walked old John Hanks, "a fine, robust old fellow, with an open countenance and bronzed cheeks," carrying the mysterious banner, with the inscription:

"Abraham Lincoln, the rail candidate for President in 1860—two rails from a lot of 3,000 made in 1830 by John Hanks and Abe Lincoln."

Stampede Convention

Tumultuous cheers rent the air. The convention went wild. Lincoln, who had been keeping out of sight, "crouching in a corner," was lifted and carried to the platform. He "blushed, but seemed to shake with inward laughter." Lincoln confessed that he and John Hanks made some rails on the Sangamon bottom. "I don't know whether we made those rails or not," he added; "the fact is, I don't think they were a credit to the makers; but I do know this—I made rails then, and I think I could make better ones than now."

"By this time," says Lamon, one of Lincoln's biographers, "the innocent Egyptians began to open their eyes—they saw plainly enough now the admirable presidential scheme unfolded to their view."

The Seward boom was dead. "Dick" Oglesby and old John Hanks and two fence rails had killed it. John M. Palmer was at once on his feet with a resolution declaring that "Abraham Lincoln is the first choice of the Republican party of Illinois for the presidency," and instructing "the delegates to the Chicago convention to use all honorable means to secure his nomination and to cast the vote of the state as a unit for him."

Thus vanished the specter of a "divided delegation" which had haunted Lincoln for many months. It turned out, as Nicolay and Hay remark in their biography, "that the Illinois Republicans sent a delegation to the Chicago convention full of personal devotion to Lincoln and composed of men of the highest standing and of consummate political ability, and their enthusiastic efforts in his behalf among the delegations from other states contributed largely to the final result."

Illinoisans Were Tireless

The statement is somewhat less than the full truth. Without such men on the delegation as David Davis, Norman B. Judd, Leonard Swett, Judge Stephen T. Logan, O. H. Browning and others of their rank, and without their ardent and tireless work, Lincoln would not have won the nomination in Chicago on the 18th of May, 1860. So cocksure were the Seward men of the success of their candidate that Horace Greeley (who sat as a delegate from Oregon and did not want Seward nominated) telegraphed the New York Tribune on the night of the 17th that "the opposition to Gov. Seward can not concentrate on any candidate and he will be nominated." But the Illinoisans were politicians of the highest rank, and by the most consummate skill eyes displayed in a political combat they brought the Seward opposition to the support of Lincoln, and he was nominated.

Of course there was no such thing as a "direct plurality primary" in that day; but if that had been the method of choosing the twenty-two delegates that went from Illinois to the historic national convention of 1860, we may rest assured that the Seward organization in Illinois would have been strong enough to have slipped in a few Seward men. The personnel of the delegation would have been, in all probability, quite different from what it actually was. Weak, divided and indifferent, the Illinois delegation would have been wholly ineffective to cope with the splendid organization back of the Seward candidacy, and Lincoln would have been ingloriously beaten.

Whether or not the year 1908 is to furnish any sort of parallel with 1860, and whether or not this state is to have the next president, "Uncle Joe" Cannon has performed a valuable service in helping to stay the radical hand that would relegate Illinois to a secondary place in the realm of national politics.

IN THE GRAPEVINE ARBOR

By FRANK H. SWEET

Copyright, 1906, by Frank H. Sweet

KETURAH ALLEN sat out under the grapevine arbor knitting. It was only 9 o'clock in the morning—an un-Christian hour to knit, as most busy housewives would have said and which Keturah herself acknowledged in the depths of her lonely, disquieted heart. But what could she do? Since the conqueror came she had no recourse against time except knitting and missionary work, and even her charity loving heart could not find the shadow of an excuse for making poor calls this morning.

"OH, MISS KETURAH, HAVE YOU HEARD THE NEWS?"

Meadowville was a small place, and since the Ladies' Missionary society and the Children's Missionary band had been organized the two or three poor families had found it a sin to keep their poverty before the public. Even the most liberal of the work lovers were forced to admit that their proteges were becoming more and more shiftless and lazy.

Keturah loved charity work and hated knitting, and it was this same hate that made her cling to it so assiduously. If she had lived in the right age her sensitive conscience would have provided her with sackcloth and ashes.

It was in the lush of middle June and the odors of honeysuckles and roses were mingled with those of ripening strawberries and pungent garden herbs. Pollen dusted bees and iridescent butterflies flitted about in the sunshine, and among the tendrils of the grapevine above her head was the half-celestial nest of a yellow warbler. Nothing was afraid of Keturah. Even now one of the warblers was twittering a contemplative interlude not three feet away from her clicking needles.

But Keturah was in a disturbed frame of mind this morning and was not even conscious of her tiny friend's presence. She could hear the conqueror bustling about in the kitchen—her kitchen now—rattling dishes, opening and shutting oven doors, whistling, yes, actually whistling—to the canary bird and now and then indulging in a snatch of high pitched, breezy song. Keturah listened with mingled emotions. The conqueror was a splendid housekeeper—she was glad to admit that, both for her brother and her conscience's sake—but she was so energetic and so strong-minded and so capable. She did all her housework and looked after the poultry and flower garden. She was president of the Missionary society and found plenty of time to visit and receive calls. Keturah admired her vastly and even liked her in a subdued sort of way, but somehow, even from her vantage ground of inside spectator, she could never quite understand how one woman could accomplish so much. Every morning her conscience made her offer to help with the work, and every morning the conqueror looked at her with a calmly superior air and said that slow help was a bother.

And that is why Keturah's mornings were spent in this grapevine arbor or out making poor calls. She wanted to like the conqueror and tried to with all the strength of her tender, shrinking heart. Was she not her brother's wife and her own sister-in-law, and was she not the best housekeeper and the most capable manager in Meadowville? But even with all these attractions Keturah could not force her sensitive, refined nerves to ignore this new order of hustle and energy and self assertion.

And there was another thing. For three and twenty years Keturah had been the undisputed mistress of the establishment, doing the work in her quiet, prim, ladylike way and never dreaming that the years would bring other change than what rightfully belonged to them. She had been housekeeper for her father until he died and then for her brother, and, although she had once thought—and hoped—that her brother might marry, such a possibility had gradually been lost sight of. He had just passed his fortieth birthday and she her forty-third when the conqueror came.

Keturah was not combative, and she honestly tried to take the new order of things according to the light her conscience dictated, but her resolutions were not as strong as the nature handed down by half a dozen generations of ancestors. At the end of a month she had gone to her brother and asked for her share of the property, so that she might go off and live by herself. At first he had been incredulous, then sarcastic. Their father had expressed a hope that the property would not be divided, he had told her, and, besides, he could not let her have her share without selling the homestead, and he would not do that. And, furthermore, he had advanced the unnecessary argument that she was too old to live by herself. She had winced a little at this thrust. It sounded so like the bristling assertions of the conqueror that she turned away hurt and silenced.

But it was true, she told herself remorselessly. She was getting to be quite an old woman. And she went to the glass to overwhelm her worldliness with a proof of the fact, but somehow the glass did not carry out the sentence of the assertion. Her skin was still soft, and her cheeks had the same delicate flush that had made her a belle in the faroff days of her girlhood, and there was not a single gray intruder among all the glossy brown hair that was coiled and massed upon her head.

She was thinking of her future now as she sat under the grapevine arbor listening to the self assertive work of the conqueror in the kitchen and oblivious of the persuasive twittering at her side. Deep down in her heart she was trying to steel herself to something desperate, to go away, to seek employment—anything. If her brother would not give up her share of the property she would surely be able to earn a living somewhere.

A quick step on the gravel walk brought her eyes from the needles and her thoughts from the future.

"Oh, here you are, Miss Keturah. I've looked for you everywhere." And Florence, the conqueror's sister, bustled into the arbor and plumped herself down on the seat beside Keturah. Florence was eighteen, very vivacious, very dumpy and very much in love with herself. Added to this, she was the pride and admiration of the conqueror's heart.

"Oh, Miss Keturah, have you heard the news?" she cried as soon as she could get her breath. "The Rev. Charles Barden, missionary to Japan, is coming to Meadowville and is going to lecture to the people here next week and is coming here to stay. What do you think of that? Going to stay here with us a whole week!"

Keturah rose quickly and then sat down and began to ply her needles with desperate energy. She did not even notice that she was knitting back over the same needle.

"What do you mean, child?" she gasped in a voice that she intended to be calm. "How do you know?"

"Why, what a woman you are!" laughed the girl. "One can't even mention missionary work but you go off into the fidgets. Catch me ever getting so cracked on charity as that. But it's true! Your brother was at the station when he got off the train this morning, and he invited him here. I was in your brother's store and saw him, and he's just splendid!"—enthusiastically—"six feet high and more and carries himself like a regular soldier. Your brother told me to hurry back and let you all know he was coming!" She was silent for a few moments, with a self-satisfied smile on her pretty face, then burst out with: "I'm going to set my cap for him. I'm just sick and tired of this poky place, and I always did want to go to Japan and China and them foreign countries."

"Child, child!" remonstrated Keturah. "He's more than twice your age." "Only forty-five," said the girl per-versely. "I heard him tell your brother so. That's just the right age in a man. And there's nobody round here can hold a candle to him. I don't believe there are many real handsome women in Japan, and you know, Miss Keturah, a smart girl can do almost anything with a man in a week."

"Maybe he's married, child."

"No, he ain't, for your brother asked him. He keeps house and has a Chinaman to cook and do his work. My sister says I must look sharp, for he's the best catch there ever was in this town. He's awful rich, even if he is a missionary."

She was silent again for some minutes, tugging at her foot complacently against the work of the arbor. Then she looked at Keturah with sudden interest.

"He said he used to live here when he was a young man. Did you know him, Miss Keturah? You must be old enough to remember most everything."

"He went to school with brother and me," said Keturah quietly. "He used to live in that house across the street."

"I'm glad to see you, Charles," she said.

"I believe that I haven't yet told you, John, that Keturah is going back with me," he said composedly.

"No? You don't mean it?" And John Allen looked from one to the other in incredulous amazement. "But, really, Charles, I congratulate you. She is a fine woman, if I do say it."

The Logan Stone of Land's End.

The most celebrated rocking stone in England is that known as the Logan, Logan or Logging stone. It is situated on the summit of a bold promontory of granite about eleven miles from Land's End, in Mount's bay, Cornwall. It is estimated to weigh about ninety tons. Yet it is so nicely balanced that a child can move it with one hand. The pivot upon which the stone rests is a small, hard protrusion, on all sides of which the whole surrounding surface has worn away, leaving the enormous boulder standing upon a narrow neck so exactly and evenly poised that a touch sets the whole mass to rocking. In the legendary lore of Penzance there is a prophecy to the effect that the Logan stone will stand until the day of the end of the world, when it will fall of its own accord just before and as a token of the ending of all earthly things. Several years ago a young English lieutenant, who did not believe in prophecies, hired a force of men, who repaired to the spot and with ropes, crowbars and levers threw the great stone from its pinnacle. When the authorities heard of the destruction of the old landmark they forced the young officer at great expense to replace the stone just as he had found it. Some claim that the police is not so equal now as it was before the incident just related.

Death of Mrs. Greenhalgh

Harold Mitchell was Thursday night found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death by violence in Zion City of Mrs. Letitia Greenhalgh on the 18th of September. May Mitchell his wife, was found not guilty of the same charge on the same evidence.

Proceedings were at once begun for a rehearing of the famous case and attorneys say that the evidence which convicted Mitchell should also have convicted his wife or freed them both, so that a new trial, probably in the March term of court is regarded as certain.

The verdict came at about nine o'clock Thursday night when only about a dozen people were in the court room, all from Zion. It was a remarkable spectacle the fanatics were all bent in prayer. A buzz of moving lips could be heard throughout the room. Otherwise the silence was intense as the jury filed in.

Foreman Ralph Chittenden of Gurnee handed the slip of paper that told the fate of the Mitchell to Judge Donnelly as soon as the jury had been led out of the jury box by Bailiff Berry.

Mrs. Mitchell when she heard her husband's fate collapsed and later shed bitter tears for the man whose fate she considered of more importance than her own.

The unusual spectacle of a son refusing to testify against the two Mitchells charged with being connected with the murder of his mother has brought to light the rumor that Walter Greenhalgh might be also classed as one of those who are responsible for the murder of his aged and crippled mother.

Jennie Greenhalgh although told by the Judge that she not testify unless she wished took the advice and recited almost the only evidence that was of any use in the case. Giving a complete history of the tragedy from beginning to end, although she seemingly was on the alert not to tell anything whereby the Mitchells might be brought to punishment for the death of her mother.

At the opening of the trial an attempt was made by the attorneys representing the defendants to persuade the Greenhalghs and Mrs. Schmidt to refrain from testifying. Prior to this they had made an agreement with the state's attorney to take the stand and tell all they knew about the case, but when the attorney warned them to keep on the safe side he refused to talk although his aged father advised him to be a man and stick to his word. This was thought to put a climax on the case and Orvis asked that the case be dismissed, but this motion was denied by the court.

J. K. Orvis made a strong argument in which he stated that the evidence that had been brought up by the state was merely circumstantial and should not be considered by the jury, and that they should return a verdict of not guilty as the law plainly stated that the defendants should be proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

An attempt to show that the Mitchells were not sane when the deed was committed was made by Mr. Orvis when in the cross examination he made an attempt to prove by neighbors that at the time of the deed the Mitchells did not appear to be in their right minds.

It seems the court immediately caught onto the scheme and perplexed the defending attorneys in such a manner that they were unable to ask the questions in the right manner and thus the insanity of the two defendants was not proven.

HUBER - LITTLE NUPTIALS

Max J. Huber and Mrs. Ena Little Married in Chicago Wednesday

On Wednesday of this week at Chicago occurred the marriage of Mrs. Ena Little to Max J. Huber, both well known residents of this village.

For some time past their friends have had a slight suspicion of their intentions but the contracting parties would give no satisfaction to their good natured questioners.

On Wednesday morning however, they were seen quietly slipping away to the depot in time to take the 7:17 train to the city, and when reached by telephone Max admitted that it was their intention to have the nuptial knot tied on Wednesday afternoon.

The bride is well known among the people of Antioch having lived at this place for the past four years and has made many friends while among us who join in extending to her their best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

The groom is a popular fellow among the boys of the town. He is a painter by trade and is young man of excellent habits who has a host of friends in Antioch and vicinity who unite with the News in extending to him and his bride their most hearty congratulations.

About two o'clock Wednesday afternoon Chas Webb received a telephone message from the happy groom telling him to set up the cigars and the boys are now enjoying a good smoke at his Max's expense and awaiting the return of the newly married couple.

The members of Sequoit lodge A. F. & A. M., of which organization Max has for a long time been a member and officer, upon hearing of his wedding at once took steps to procure a suitable present which will be presented to Mr. and Mrs. Huber in the name of the lodge upon their return.

Mr. and Mrs. Huber will make their future home at this place in the flat which Mr. Huber has already furnished and where he has lived for some time.

FOX LAKE BOYS AWARDED PRIZES

The two days target tournament held at the Oak Park grounds last Saturday and Sunday brought out good crowds of crack shooters.

The first prize was awarded to Harry Dunnill of Fox Lake, he having the best average for the two days. Bert Dunnill of Fox Lake came second and W. F. Holtz McHenry, third. The individual score is given below:

THEABOLD FOUND NOT GUILTY

The case against John Theabold of Wadsworth, charged with assault and battery, was heard in Justice Murrie's court in Waukegan, Friday afternoon and Theabold was found not guilty by the jury.

The case was one of considerable interest.

Mrs. Badendyke of Wadsworth, had Theabold arrested on the charge of assault and battery, charging that he had struck her and knocked her down. The evidence showed that Theabold had struck her but that she had first struck him.

It seems that Mrs. Badendyke had left a baby carriage in the road and Theabold got out of his rig to put it out of the way. He remonstrated with Mrs. Badendyke and it appears that she had struck him. He retaliated by knocking her down. The incident occurred on Sunday.

Attorney Weiss represented the defense while E. J. Heydecker prosecuted.

SEEK 200 ACRES

To be Added to the State Rifle
Range at Camp Logan,
Winthrop Harbor

LAND PRICES ARE TOO HIGH

State Will Make Lake County Rifle Range
Permanent Camping Place for Annual Tour of Duty

Negotiations are now pending for the purchase of 200 acres of land as an addition to Camp Logan.

Adjutant General Scott of the state militia, was in Waukegan Saturday and proceeded north to Camp Logan to view the ground, but although he found out what lands he desires to change the rifle range into the permanent headquarters of the militia, the price it is said is rather too steep for him.

The land chosen tentatively for the addition to the camp is that comprised in the Cannon place, owned by Mrs. Mary J. Durkin and 200 acres are sought.

Before leaving, Adjutant General Scott placed the matter in the hands of Captain A. V. Smith of Battery C, who will probably finish the deal if it is possible.

The state artillery encamped at Camp Logan which is near Winthrop Harbor last summer, but because the range ground is low and marshy, the camp was set on the Cannon place, which will also be the site next year.

However the state favorably regards Camp Logan as a camping place for the entire militia, to get the militia boys away from the allurements of the great city, and is thus seeking to buy the additional land.

OPERATOR FATALLY WOUNDED

Clark Arganbright, operator for the Chicago Great Western railroad at Lilylake Ill., is reported dying at the West Side hospital Monday, from wounds inflicted by a bandit who attempted to rob the station at Lilylake. He was shot twice once over the right eye and once in the right shoulder, while defending the station.

Poses of Lilylake residents and farmers headed by the town marshal and special agents of the Great Western, Illinois Central and Northwestern railroads are searching the country side for Daniel McDaniels, accused by Arganbright of being his assailant.

Arganbright had left the station house to fetch some wood from a shed in the rear and when the robber was rifling the cash drawer. The thief had appropriated Arganbright's revolver and with it attacked the operator. Arganbright fought after being wounded but fell at the second shot.

In an ante-mortem statement Arganbright accused McDaniels. The latter is a Frenchman, 25 years of age and had been employed on the farm of E. C. Cooler until August 1, then he left Lilylake and did not return until ten days ago. He could not be found in his customary haunts after the shooting.

The wounded operator was hurried to Chicago on a special train and taken to the hospital.

GIRL IS OVERCOME BY GAS

Miss Mabel Erb Near Death's Door all Night as Result of Accident

In the midst of a letter that she was writing to her brother, Friday night last Miss Mabel Erb, of Waukegan, a teacher at the McAlister school, was overcome by gas escaping from a jet in her room and fell from her chair to the floor, where some time later she was found by her mother and sister.

Dr. Foley was summoned and waged a battle all night long for the girl's life. When found by her mother and sister at 11:30 she was cold and barely at the last gasp. At 3:00 in the morning she was pronounced out of danger after having shown signs of consciousness.

That she did not perish as the result of gas evidently inhaled is one of the wonders.

The theory is that some small article of attire was hung upon the gas jet and that in removing the article the jet was accidentally turned on, and not noticing the smell of gas was overcome.

NEARLY DROWNED IN LAKE

Judge Rinaker's Party Has Close Call from Death in Pistakee Bay

CLING TO UPTURNED CRAFT

Stephen Revere and Frank Padeloup,
Occupants of the Boat Swim a Mile to Shore for Aid.

Judge Lewis Rinaker of the Cook county court and five companions were nearly drowned in Pistakee Bay, near Fox Lake, by the capsizing of a boat. Judge Rinaker heroically assisted one of the men from the water to the bottom of the overturned craft. Then he and three others were rescued through the bravery of two of their companions, who swam a mile to shore and obtained relief.

Besides Judge Rinaker there were in the party, John McKay, Andrew McAnish, Frank Padeloup, Knute Peterson and Stephen Revere, all of the Cosmopolitan gun club.

The accident, which occurred Sunday, is the greatest of the kind on the bay since William Miller was drowned five years ago when a boat turned turtle not fifty feet from the scene of Sunday's mishap.

Revere and Padeloup proved their mettle by swimming through the chilling waters for a mile and returning with two boats and life savers to where their marooned companions were tossed about clinging to the bottom of the capsize boat.

The party were hunting ducks at the time of the accident. The boat was weighted down, bearing besides its passengers a large quantity of shells, several guns and some game. The water was unusually rough.

Two of the hunters suddenly jumped up to fire at a flock of ducks which rose from the water beyond them. Their movement caused the craft to overturn and the six were precipitated into the cold waters of the bay.

Judge Rinaker and McKay seized hold of the boat and quickly turned their attention to Peterson and McAnish, who were floundering in the water in grave peril of being carried down by the weight of their water-logged hunting clothes.

They assisted them from the water to a place of temporary safety on the bottom of the boat.

Meanwhile Revere turned and dove after a sinking gun and regained it. It was the only thing besides themselves which the hunters saved.

The fact that Revere later discovered that the gun belonged to Peterson was the cause of a laugh at his expense, and the circumstances that the boat was of the name of "Joker" caused another moment of merriment among the shivering castaways.

A CORN SHREDDER ACCIDENT

Henry Schaefer, aged about twenty-five years, son of Mrs. Nick Schaefer, who resides near Johnsonburg, was the unfortunate victim of the deadly corn shredder last Saturday. The accident to Schaefer was a most distressing one, he having his left arm literally torn off at the elbow. Schaefer was just about to finish the day's shredding and had picked up a few shocks that were strewn about the machine. In feeding the last shocks into the machine one of them was caught cross ways, the crushers catching both ends of the stock, thus forming a loop. Schaefer's left arm was caught in the loop and drawn into the machine with the above result. His arm was amputated just above the elbow.

PEACOCK APPOINTED POSTMASTER

The strife over the postoffice at Spring Grove was brought to an end Tuesday, when Herbert Peacock received word that he had been appointed to the position. Besides Mr. Peacock, two other aspirants, John Karle and Frank Orvis have been in the race for the postmastership and a lively contest has been waged in that village for several weeks past. Mr. Peacock, however, was the fortunate man and he should make Spring Grove an efficient postmaster. He is an honest and courteous gentleman and will no doubt fulfill the duties of his new office in a highly satisfactory manner.

CIRCUIT COURT ADJOURNS

List of Jurors Who Will Administer Justice
During December Term

After spending the morning hearing motions made by Lake county attorneys, Judge Donnelly at noon Friday dismissed court until the first Monday in December.

During the December term the court will be required to rule over another important murder case and that is the Lake Bluff murder. The defendants in this case will be Mrs. Ross, a married woman but 19 years of age, and Salvador Muto, a man of almost 50.

On account of the many important cases that will come up at the next term of court, Judge Donnelly advised that two panels of veniremen be called.

The advice was taken and as a result the lists of the two juries were made out.

The first jury will be called on the first Monday in November or November 2.

The first panel will consist of the following Lake County men: W. C. Adams, Geo. Elroy, Jas. McGuire and W. C. Edwards of Benton; Alfred Bain of Newport; Percy Dibble and W. H. Hucker of Antioch; Jas. McNeil and Harry Dalziel of Grant; Ole Hansen, of Avon; Jos. Wilmington and Geo. Renahan of Avon; H. J. Esty of Warren; Clarence Dooley and George Brogren of Warren; Frank Fulton, Henry Urban, Jos. Jackaway, Fred Erskine, Fred Conley D. A. Grady, Jas. Brown and Fred North of Waukegan; Samuel Rundquist, Albert Enmark, William Morford, E. V. Welch and Ed Neve, of Shields; Henry Kane, of Libertyville; George Mitchell, of Fremont; J. Walton, of Wauconda; Wm. Schultz, of Elia; Wallace Meyer, of Vernon; John Schneider, of West Deerfield and Edward Zimmer and H. K. Coate, of Deerfield.

The list of jurors for the second panel are: R. P. Brooks, William Johnson, John Redding, of Benton; George Haolad, of Newport; M. M. Burke and J. C. James, Jr., of Antioch; William Schneider, Jas. King, Jos. Here and Ed Brown, of Antioch; C. H. Harr and M. F. Schryon, of Warren; R. W. Hook, Wm. Sporer, C. N. West, C. P. Westerfield, W. S. Barker, Wm. Alcock, C. A. Holden, George Halliwell and John Lup, of Waukegan; Lambert Box, of Shields; L. E. Bond, Riley Hardy, E. D. Hubbard, E. H. Brown and C. J. Keirl, of Libertyville; C. M. Foskett, of Fremont; F. O. Carr, of Waukegan; Vincent Dainin, of Cuba; H. J. Hagerty, of Elm; J. N. Busch and Henry Geest, of Vernon; Wm. Hahn, of West Deerfield and H. Dittmer and C. W. Aldridge, of Deerfield.

FARMERS' TELEPHONE CO. DECIDES TO INCORPORATE

Saturday afternoon of last week the subscribers of the Farmers' Telephone company held a meeting at the village hall to formulate plans for the improvement of the service on this line. After much discussion on the subject it was decided to appoint a committee to settle on some definite plan.

This committee consisted of two subscribers on each line, and at a meeting held on Tuesday evening it was decided to incorporate. The committee also decided that it would be best to move the line from the west to the east side of Main street in the village of Antioch, and the work of transferring the line will begin in the near future.

Mr. W. H. Osmond, who has had charge of the exchange for the past four years, handed in his resignation as manager some time ago but no move was made to remove it. However, on Saturday last Mr. Osmond informed the officers that he could attend to it no longer and that it would be necessary for them to move it. It is not known as yet just where it will be placed as the officers have up to the present time reached no decision in the matter.

MERCHANT LEADER IS DEAD

Gilbert B. Watrous, of Waukegan, Dies
Suddenly on Saturday Last

Gilbert B. Watrous, one of Waukegan's best known and oldest business men, died Saturday night at eleven o'clock from heart trouble. People who heard the report Sunday that the well known man was dead, could hardly believe it and the community generally was shocked. Mr. Watrous' death followed a sickness of but a few hours and the rapid decline of what had before been a most rugged constitution, was really surprising.

Mr. Watrous was 72 years old, and was born at Catskill, Green county, N. Y., Sept. 30, 1837. He came to Chicago with his parents in 1855 and located near Woodstock, where later he engaged as clerk and still later, in 1860, started a hardware business of his own.

The following year, 1861, saw him in business in Waukegan, where he associated with W. B. Dodge in the hardware store operated under the firm name of Dodge & Watrous, until the year 1888, when the present firm of G. B. Watrous & Son had its start. In all Mr. Watrous was in business in Waukegan for forty-six years and was widely known throughout Lake county.

SHALL COINS BE CHANGED

"In God We Trust" Recommended by Roosevelt to

ORIGINATED UNDER LINCOLN

President Has Right to do so but Congress Can at Any Time Order that It Be Restored

Discussion has been aroused by the announcement that President Roosevelt has used his authority in opposition to the continuance of the practice of putting the words "In God We Trust" on the coins of the United States.

Those whose memory goes back to the dark days of the Civil war, when few coins of the United States were in circulation at this time probably will recall the copper 2-cent piece as the coin on which they first saw the inscription. Those were solemn days. The feelings of the people were keyed to a high pitch. The highest and holiest aspirations of the royal masses of the north were in favor of the success of the Union cause, which sometimes seemed in doubt. It was a time when the masses believed in God, and when pious phrases came naturally to the lips of good men. The putting of these solemn words upon the coins seemed to them as proper as prayer as proper as the appointment of days of national fasting and supplication or days of national thanksgiving.

It was President Lincoln who revived this latter custom, which had fallen into disuse since Washington was chief executive. During the long interval the custom of issuing Thanksgiving proclamations was strictly confined to the will of the governors of the several states. During the Civil war President Lincoln frequently appointed days of thanksgiving for national victories, and more than once, when the results of great battles were discouraging to the Union cause, he appointed days of thanksgiving and prayer. It was in 1863 that he issued his proclamation appointing the last Thursday of November in that year as a day of thanksgiving and prayer—a custom which has been followed every year by every president since.

President Roosevelt has the right to drop the pious custom which originated under President Lincoln of putting on the coins an expression of confidence in the Divine Overruling Power, as he would have a right if he chose to cease the practice of appointing an annual day of thanksgiving. His retention of the one practice and his decision against the other constitute expressions of his personal feeling and exercises of discretion permitted him under the constitution and law. He gives as his reason for non-conformity in the instance of the coinage his "very firm conviction that to put such a motto on coins, or to use it in any kindred manner, not only does no good, but does positive harm, and is in effect irreverence which comes dangerously close to sacrilege."

If this is his feeling, how could he do otherwise than he has done? Lincoln's feeling was otherwise, and the feeling of many excellent Americans at the present time is likewise. Congress could order the restoration of the phrase if it chose, but Congress is likely to have its hands full with other business.

The Mystery OF Carney-Croft

By

JOSEPH BROWN COOKE

(Copyright, 1917, by Story Press Corporation.)

"You'd better not try to bring three people back through the drifts," said the doctor, who had just come in for a bite and a cup of coffee. "You can't drive two horses to advantage in this weather, and if you insist upon going why don't you take my mare and cutter and go alone? She's been in the stable all day and she knows every inch of the road, so if you just give her her head she'll bring you through all right. You'd better take my storm coat and gloves, too, for you'll find the wind pretty cold after you've been in it a bit."

Although I had but two miles or thereabouts to travel from the house to the railway station I made an early start and had the horse at the door before ten o'clock. The doctor came down to see me off and gave me a few parting words of advice.

As I opened the door it was almost blown out of my hand by the force of the wind and great sheets of snow and sleet came sailing in, under the protective half way down the hall.

I bundled myself up in the doctor's great fur coat and surrounded myself with his rugs and then, bowing my head to the fury of the gale, I did as I had been told, and let the mare take her own gait and pick her own way to the train.

The train was 40 minutes late and, after putting my horse in the stable and blanketing her comfortably in accordance with the doctor's instructions, I returned to the station and paced restlessly up and down the waiting room, now and then peering anxiously through the frost-coated windows in a childlike way, as if my eyes could penetrate the blackness of the night and see for miles down the track.

Finally, as the time for its arrival drew near, one of the station men, with that intuition so frequently observed and so incomprehensible to the average individual, suddenly picked up a lantern and strode out on the platform. The heavy rumble of the oncoming locomotive and the faint squeal of its whistle struck my ears at the same instant and, looking out, I saw its single bleary eye gleaming dimly in the distance as it plowed on through the whirling sleet.

I was about to go out on the platform myself when the station master called me to the telephone and the doctor at Carney-Croft said hurriedly: "I suppose the train is late but get MacArdel here as soon as you can if you want him to see her alive. It won't be many hours now and it may be—"

There was a snap and a buzzing sound for an instant and I knew that the wire was down.

In another moment MacArdel was by my side, and as soon as we could get the lantern lighted and the mare out of the stable we started on our wild drive to Carney-Croft.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Entrance of Chico.

I lashed the panting beast until great welts stood out on her sides and her hide was lathered with foam, while we dashed along in the blinding storm and finally galloped through the gateway and up the winding road toward the house. The snow was drifting heavily and MacArdel leaned over the side of the sleigh and held the lantern close to the ground so that I could see such little traces of the road as remained or we would have been ditched a dozen times in our mad race to the dying girl.

Suddenly, as we neared the house, and at a place where the drifts were deeper and the exhausted horse struggled heavily in her effort to make her way on, a man sprang out of the sleet and, grasping the animal by the head, threw her backward with almost superhuman strength and brought us to a standstill.

"What do you mean?" I shouted, raising the whip high over my head. "Let us go on or I'll brain you!"

"Don't strike, Mr. Ware!" he gasped. "It's Bobbs, sir! You remember Bobbs!"

"Let us pass, Bobbs!" I exclaimed, angrily, losing my astonishment in my anxiety to reach the house. "I'll see you again, Bobbs! It's the doctor, here, for Miss Weston!"

"I know, sir," he panted, "and it's the doctor I want! She's gone, sir, and I'm afraid he's going, too. Come with me, for God's sake!"

"Do you mean she's dead, Bobbs?" I cried, as a great lump rose in my throat.

"Yes, oh, yes!" he almost screamed. "The doctor can't do her no good! She died some half hour ago, and he's dying, too, I tell you! Have you no sense, sir? Oh, bring the doctor to God's name!"

"Drive!" I asked, suddenly, not knowing the meaning and apparent madness of our go-

"No," he replied, "but it's only a step, sir. I'll show you the way. Oh, I thought you would never come, sir!" We sprang out and, giving Bobbs the lantern, followed him through the snow to the side of the house on which Miss Weston's windows opened. "He doesn't know she's gone yet," said Bobbs, as he trudged along, lighting our way as best he could. "But he knows it must be soon, and he's been waiting out here in the storm for over six hours."

We came to a tree, partly sheltered by some shrubbery around it, and there, leaning against its trunk was poor John Carney, tottering feebly for support and gazing fixedly at the window behind which lay the body of his loved one.

"It's Mr. Carney, sir," explained Bobbs, choking down a sob. "You might not know him, sir, he's changed so in the year and it's a long bit since you saw him last."

MacArdel made no move to go near him and we stood there, I in expectation and MacArdel with an air of professional scrutiny. Carney spoke, but without turning his head.

"I know you, Ware," he said slowly and painfully, raising his voice feebly to make it heard above the fury of the storm. "You have been good to Florence and so to me—and I thank you. I can't say more than that, Ware, but my thanks are heartfelt."

He paused and seemed to choke for an instant before he resumed:

"You must pardon me, Ware, for all the trouble I've made you and for the worry that Florence has had to suffer, but I was too sure of myself when I thought I could frighten you away with the ghosts that Bobbs and I manufactured and the letters that I had him write you. No one knew we were here but Bobbs' good mother, and I am perfectly helpless now, you know," and he changed his position enough to show us two arms swathed in bandages, "but God only knows what a comfort they were to me, and Bobbs or his mother got a word to her from me whenever they could."

He was panting noisily from the effort of his long exertion, and Bobbs made a deprecating gesture as if he would have him stop, but Carney motioned him away and began once more in faint, disjointed words:

"I mustn't stop now, Bobbs. I have more to say and my time is growing short."

He leaned heavily against the tree for support and paused as if summoning to his aid all his energy and all his courage, and then gasped out:

"Be good to Florence when she comes—to you, Ware, and—God—blessing—on you—both."

Suddenly, and with a muffled sob, he lunged forward and raised his poor distorted arms toward the window, which his gaze had never left for an instant. One of the nurses appeared and raised the sash to the top, letting the bitter wintry air rush in and fill the death chamber.

"It's the end," moaned Carney, in a scarcely audible tone. "It's the end, and yet the beginning, too. Oh! my God, be kind—be good to me now. I cannot wait—my Anne—I am coming—I—Ware—by—her—side—Ware—don't—forget—I—cannot—harm—her—now—I—Anne—my—precious—Our—Father—who—art—Amen—my Anne."

As we sprang to support him the light of the lantern flashed across his cruelly disfigured face and MacArdel muttered in my ear:

"Leprosy—poor devil, just as I thought, but what he said was true."

Leaning Against Its Trunk Was Poor John Carney.

she's been more than a mother to me, Ware. You must never let her want for anything as long as she lives. She and Bobbs must be well provided for when I'm gone, Ware."

He stopped again and gasped heavily for breath, but soon he recovered himself and went on, though more feebly and with greater effort than before:

"I know I was foolish to do this, Ware, but at first I fancied I could stay here and keep out of sight of the authorities and then, when I needed exercise, we thought of the ghosts as a means of keeping people away and giving me more freedom."

He had not taken his eyes from the window in all this time and the snow was falling so heavily that we were covered thickly with its soft, fleecy mantle.

Again he began to speak while we stood as men entranced, but his voice was even weaker than before and it was with difficulty that we could make out all that he said.

"I'll be gone soon, Ware, and you must keep it all from the people and have me buried at once. You know there would be a panic if they knew, and yet there would be no danger in this climate. It's only when you live right in the midst of it, Ware, and have it on all sides of you all the time, as I did in Hawaii, trying to help those poor souls in their sufferings."

"There's no danger, Ware, to anyone and yet, if they found me I'd have been peened up somewhere like a wild beast, and I couldn't bear it. I know I was foolish over it, and that I probably could have bought my freedom in a way, but once we got settled here I wanted to stay in peace. You know we never bothered you with the ghosts after Florence came back, and I had Bobbs send you that one last note in a faint hope that you would go away again."

"Bobbs wrote to Anne for me, too, telling her to talk with Mrs. Bruce and try and persuade you to go, but she only begged to see me and insisted on keeping as near to me as she could. Of course, I could not see her, Ware, but she used to write me every day and leave the letters on the window sill for Chico to get after dark. I wasn't able to answer them, Ware, for Ware. There's no danger to anyone here."

We lowered him gently to the ground and the rapidly drifting snow received him in its soft embrace and covered him over like a shroud.

Some hours later, when the house was quiet for the night and MacArdel had retired to his room, I called Bobbs into the dimly lighted library and said:

"It's late, I know, Bobbs, and we are all worn out in mind and body, but I want you to tell me the rest of this story before you go."

"There's little to tell now, sir," said Bobbs, bravely keeping back his tears. "We lived either in my mother's house or in the old cellar with the tunnel that leads to the river. Mrs. Bruce is my mother, sir, and my name is Robert Bruce, but in the old country they used to call me 'Bobs,' sir, after Lord Roberts, you know."

PROUD OF HIS NEW NOSE.

Original, Frozen Off, Is Replaced by One of Vulcanite.

Philadelphia.—Greatly altered in appearance, but for the better, David Dodson, of Barnesboro, Pa., walked out of the dental hall of the University of Pennsylvania, proud wearer of a substitute for his nose that was frozen off in a blizzard several years ago.

Last year Dodson prevailed on Dean C. H. Frazier, of the medical department, to attempt to graft a finger of his right hand on his face to form the nose. When the operation was about to prove successful, Dodson, crazed by pain, pulled the finger out of its place and made the operation a failure.

The new nose is made of flesh-colored vulcanite, with block-in tubes, and is held on the face by means of a pair of bow spectacles and a heavy false mustache.

The case was handled by Philip Kurtz, a senior of the dental department, under the direction of Dr. A. De Witt Gritman.

Doing It Up.

"This bill is too high," said the customer. "Too high?" ejaculated the laundryman. "That's what I said; too high." But, man, do you know how long it takes to do up a shirt? "Why, about four washings."

Our Springfield Letter

Special Correspondent Writes of Things of Interest at the State Capital.

Springfield.—A net increase of $125,401,947 in the assessed value of taxable property in Illinois for 1907 as compared with 1906 was shown in the report of the state board of equalization. The total assessed value of all such property, according to the report, is $1,252,068,631. As the assessment is based on one-fifth the total value of all taxable property the report shows the aggregate value of taxable property in Illinois is $6,260,343,155. The computations for the state rate of 1908 will be based on a total assessed value of $1,352,068,631. The following table shows the equalized assessment of all classes of property for 1907, together with a comparative statement showing the assessment a year ago:

	1906.	1907.
Steam railroads.....	$3,328,095	$2,445,673
Electric railroads.....	2,763,321	7,852,530
Capital stock of railroads.....	3,215,353	1,539,340
Capital stock of other corporations.....	12,555,501	10,098,130
Lands.....	243,585,943	231,904,036
Town and city lots.....	412,275,998	429,839,662
Personal property.....	229,722,122	245,819,550
Total.....	$1,126,656,657	$1,252,068,631

Decreased assessments are shown on the capital stock of railroads and other corporations. These are accounted for by the decided increase in the assessment on tangible property of such corporations, the increased assessment on which necessitates a corresponding reduction in the tax on the capital stock. In the case of the capital stock of railroads the decrease amounts to $676,038, and in that of other corporations $2,057,501. In each of the other items increases are shown. That on personal property amounts to $17,027,528, lands $48,318,544, town and city lots $57,672,064, steam railroads $1,077,578, and electric railroads $1,089,199. The largest assessment on the capital stock of franchises and corporations other than railroads is made in the case of the People's Gas Light & Coke company, of Chicago, which totals $5,150,000, or net practically one-half the total assessment of the state for such items. This assessment, however, is a decrease of over $100,000 from that of 1906 in the case of this company. A decrease of $310,000 also is noted in the assessment of the Pullman company, the net assessment on its stocks and franchises totalling $2,000,000.

National Guard's New Head.
Brig. Gen. Edward Clinton Young, who has been appointed by Gov. Denoon as major general of the Illinois national guard and the commanding officer of the entire state militia, was born at St. Joseph, Mo., in 1862. For four years he was a cadet at West Point and became a second lieutenant in the regular army. Subsequently he became captain in the First Illinois Infantry, and then major and colonel in the First cavalry. He served in the Spanish-American war. Maj. Gen. Young taught school before entering West Point. He is a member of the Union League and Midlothian clubs and is prominent in business as well as in military circles.

EDWARD C. YOUNG

Tillman Says It's Cannon.

In an interview at Danville Senator Benjamin Tillman, of South Carolina, declared that President Roosevelt will not accept a third term and that Uncle Joe Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives will be the Republican nominee. "Bryan," Mr. Tillman said, "will be the Democratic nominee without a doubt. He is the greatest living Democrat and the proper man to intrust with the affairs of the government."

Smallpox General in State.

Smallpox is widely scattered points throughout Illinois is causing considerable trouble for the state board of health. In addition to the 50 cases reported at Oblong, in Crawford county, a case was reported at Muncie, in Vermilion county, where a teacher in one of the schools is said to be suffering with the affliction. The schools there were ordered closed and a quarantine established. A case also was reported at Camp Grove, in Marshall county, and a suspected case at Toledo, in Cumberland county.

Cannon on the Oglesby Bill.

Congressman Joseph G. Cannon, aspirant for the Republican nomination for president, is out with a statement giving reasons why he is opposed to the Oglesby direct-primary plurality bill in its original form. The senate, at the request of Cannon, amended the measure by eliminating from it direct voting for presidential electors and delegates to national party conventions. Mr. Cannon, discussing the referendum vote in 1904 in favor of direct primaries, says: "The house bill goes farther and deals with the selection by voluntary party organizations of delegates to national and other conventions. These delegates are not known to the constitution or the laws of Illinois, but are agents of members of organizations to voice their will in the selection of candidates to be nominated for president and vice president and were not contemplated in the declaration of public policy voted upon in 1904."

Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. Meets.

The seventieth annual session of the grand lodge, grand encampment and Rebekah assembly of the Illinois Odd Fellows was held in Springfield beginning Monday. Meetings were held in the state house in the hall of representatives and senate chamber and in the state armory. The grand encampment met in the senate chamber for organization Monday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. At 8:30 o'clock, in the state armory, the degrees of the encampment were exemplified by R. S. Hall encampment, No. 172, of Paxton. On Tuesday the grand lodge met in the evening at representatives hall in the state house for organization. Following this, at eight o'clock, a musical and literary entertainment and dance was given at the state armory.

Armistice in Primary Fight.

The joint conference committee on the primary bill was still having a tug-of-war on "Uncle Joe" Cannon's delegate-elect proposition when the members suddenly decided to go home until November 25. After which Big Barnacle Berry adjusted his white lawn necktie and expressed his view of the situation as follows: "It will give the members time to make up their minds on this momentous phase of primary legislation and, I believe I may safely say, when the great white light dawns they will discover what paths they should best pursue and in what direction they should conscientiously travel, forward or backward, just as the guiding finger of truth may beckon." Whatever that means.

Postal Banks Are Favored.

On account of the absence of Second Assistant McCleary, who could not attend the session, the postmasters' association adjourned after their morning meeting Wednesday to convene in Springfield next year. W. R. Jewell, of Danville, was chairman of the committee which prepared resolutions thanking the citizens of the two cities and the university officials, and especially W. B. McKinley, for their entertainment here. The savings bank and parcels post plans were recommended by the same committee for earnest consideration by the post offices and post roads committee in congress.

Democrats to Consider Primary Bill.

Before the Democratic members of the conference committee sign the report of the conferees on the Oglesby primary law, it is proposed to hold a Democratic caucus to determine whether or not the party will support the measure as it has been amended. It depends largely on what the Democrats decide to do whether there will be an emergency primary law effective for the nominations of next spring. Speaker Shurtliff has about decided that the conference committee report submitting a bill with an emergency clause will need a two thirds vote in the house.

To Probe Canal Commission.

Subpoenas issued commanding the attendance of 14 prospective witnesses indicate that a thorough and probably sensational probe of the inner affairs of the Illinois and Michigan canal commission is scheduled by the special investigating committee of the Illinois house of representatives. The subpoenas were signed by Speaker Shurtliff and will be served by a special sergeant-at-arms of the house. Congressman William Lorimer is to be asked to take the stand.

Boom Cleveland for President.

Grover Cleveland as the Democratic candidate for president was suggested in political circles in Chicago. It was urged that a ticket headed by Mr. Cleveland, with Gov. Johnson, of Minnesota, for vice president, could be elected. Those making the suggestion are strongly opposed to the nomination of William Jennings Bryan. It came up in connection with the "week end" political gathering, which Chairman Tom Taggart, of the Democratic national committee, is to give at French Lick Springs, Ind.

PERUNA A TONIC OF GREAT USEFULNESS.

HON. R. S. THARIN

Hon. R. S. Tharin, Attorney at Law and counsel for Anti-Trust League, writes from Pennsylvania Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows: "Having used Peruna for catarrhal disorders, I am able to testify to its great remedial excellence and do not hesitate to give it my emphatic endorsement and earnest recommendation to all persons affected by that disorder. It is also a tonic of great usefulness." Mr. T. Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can., writes: "Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having a gripe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well. I also induced a young lady, who was all run down and confined to the house, to take Peruna, and after taking Peruna for three months she is able to follow her trade of tailoring. I can recommend Peruna for all such who are ill and require a tonic."

Pe-ru-na Tablets.

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the solid medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

Envy.

"Think of the patient, uncomplaining industry of the busy bee," said the man who makes perfunctory efforts to be cheerful.

"The busy bee," replied the business man, "has no occasion to complain. He is one of the few manufacturers who are not being bothered constantly by the tariff or the pure food laws."—Washington Star.

DOCTORS IN GRAND JURY NET.

Two indicted in Iowa for Conspiracy to Force an Independent Physician to Force a Surgical Case.

Waverly, Ia.—The Bremer county grand jury, which a few weeks ago indicted fourteen members of the county medical association, alleging violation of the anti-trust law, recently reported additional indictments against Dr. W. A. Rohlf and Dr. O. L. Chaffee on the general ground of conspiracy. Their alleged offense was of forcing an independent doctor from a surgical case, in which he as well as one of the accused doctors had been employed, after he had refused to sign the union scale.

YESTERDAY

Sixty-four years ago, Nov. 25th, 1841, two hundred and twenty-three years and two days after the landing of our Pilgrim Fathers on Plymouth Rock, I. R. Lyon, a sturdy pioneer of New England, established at Little Fort, now Waukegan, one of the first trading posts in this section at which the Indian bartered and the white man and trapper received his years supplies. Many firms since then have come and gone but that sturdy ancestor of the present generation of owners had founded better than he knew; for the work of his beginning was destined to occupy the same plane in the history of Lake County retailing as the story of Plymouth Rock occupies today in the history of the Western World.

TODAY

During this Anniversary Thanksgiving Celebration and Sale, an epoch marking event in the annals of the mercantile history of Lake County, we want you to be one of those congregated here to help celebrate the occasion in a befitting manner. A wonderful transformation has taken place, this establishment having grown from an inauspicious beginning almost three score years and ten ago, and rising to the enviable position it now occupies, because we gave our patrons every advantage possible to secure reliable merchandise at more than fair, honest prices.

TOMORROW

Always interesting because of its indefinite possibilities, will be a source of pleasure and pride to the community because our tomorrow, spread as it is over the course of the coming year, means many advantageous changes. An increased floor space, aggregating upwards of 75,000 square feet, the elimination of all intervening walls and the lowering or raising of all floors to a uniform level, new store equipment throughout, better facilities and improved service, the creating of a greater outlet for merchandise, will give us an unsurpassed purchasing power that will make itself felt at all points of the compass enabling us to maintain for your benefit a still standard of merchandise at a price that in many instances will be less than that asked for an inferior quality.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The western bankers are all looking toward New York now and singing "Oh, bring back my 'bundle' to me!"

A number of eminent statesmen will spend most of the time between now and 1908 mending their punctured parchments.

While waiting for that elastic currency they talk about, we would suggest that an astrigent price list would help more than a little.

This question of what to do with the Indians need no longer trouble the philantropists. There are jobs waiting right now for all the carline graduates as football coaches.

Among the things that will have to be merely inferred in the President's Thanksgiving proclamation is the fact that we are not going to be inflicted with an extra session of Congress.

If the President would only write a monograph entitled "What I Will Do About It," he could be quite sure of ranking with the twelve best sellers between now and the nominating convention.

On top of the visit of the steel magnates to the White House last week and the assurance that there would be nothing "disturbing" to the business interests in the President's next message to Congress, comes like the hard worked "bell from the blue," the most sensational suggestion yet for the government control of corporations. This is nothing less than a suggestion that the power be put into the hands of the executive to summarily order any corporation from business when there was reason to believe that it was operating in contravention of law. This is the most radical suggestion that has been made yet.

It means to put into the hands of the President directly or through the department of Commerce and Labor the power of stopping any corporation from doing business on the expert testimony of departmental agents. The reason advanced for such radical action is that the delays, postponements, injunctions and all sorts of legal devices that the big trusts use to block operations of the laws make those laws almost useless. It offers a short cut to punishment and would mean making the corporations fight the case in the courts after the punishment had been indicated instead of before. It would be practically the re-estabishment of the right of appeal to injunction beforehand. For it would of course be impossible to stop many of the big corporations from doing business altogether without inflicting a hardship on the general public. It must be admitted that conditions are pretty bad to even allow such a suggestion to be considered at all.

But it is certainly a suggestion fraught with danger. In the hands of an absolutely just and honest executive, it is a power that could be well exercised. But it would be putting an awful power into the hands of a man who was the least under suspicion. The only thing that makes the matter worthy of serious discussion is the fact that it has come to the public through the same channel that a good many feelers have been put out from the White House.

If the object is to arouse discussion and get the public sentiment before Congress meets, it has certainly accomplished its purpose, for the question is already being discussed at length. And the worst of it is, from the corporations' point of view, that it is a thing that will be seriously considered.

AUCTION SALE

The undersigned will sell at public auction, at the Ed Dodge residence, 114 miles south of Milledgeville, on Friday, November 22, commencing at 2 o'clock p. m., 1 Bantley 14 horse traction engine, and one J. I. Case separator, all in good repair, to the highest bidder. Geo. E. Webb.

SOLO MADE A SENSATION.

Barytone Had Caught the Music, But Not the Words.

A certain young Unitarian minister is visiting a friend and classmate who lives in Roxbury, says the Boston Herald, and while the two were sitting around a fire and spinning yarns the minister who is visiting and who comes from the west told this: "When I went west, first I was in a small town called L—, and in the church of my father, the village blacksmith had a voice that could shake mountains, and whatever he lacked in any other feature it made up in volume. He couldn't read music any more than he could English, but he learned a tune very readily. One Sunday we were to be favored with a new anthem because it was a special occasion, and the barytone had one portion all to himself. Unfortunately he had misread many of the practices. The anthem went along excellently until it came to a beautiful part which read: 'And dying, bids us all aspire.' Here the rest of the singers stopped short, in that quick, sudden way that chords have, and in the ensuing stillness sounded the ponderous tones of the blacksmith: 'And dying brides are filled with fire.'"

He Fought at Gettysburg.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., who lost a foot at Gettysburg, writes: "Electric Bitters have done me more good than any medicine I ever took. For several years I had stomach trouble, and paid out much money for medicine to little purpose, until I began taking Electric Bitters. I would not take $500 for what they have done for me." Grand tonic for the aged and for feeble males; sure cure for lumbago and body builders; sure cure for lame back and weak kidneys. Guaranteed by J. H. Swan, druggist. 50c.

But Not So Useful.

Some so-called friends are like burglar alarms—they go off when there's trouble around.—Spartan Set.

There is nothing better for stomach troubles than Kodol, which contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Kodol is offered on a guaranteed plan for the relief of heart burn, flatulence, sour stomach, belching of gas, nausea and all stomach troubles. So at times when you don't feel just right, when you are drowsy after meals, and your head aches or you have no appetite, and you are cross and irritable, take a little Kodol. It digests what you eat. It will make you healthy. Sold by J. H. Swan.

World's Cable Lines.

About 250,000 miles of cable repose at the bottom of the sea, representing $250,000,000. This works out at about $1,000 a mile to make and lay.

You can't be well if you have a weak, unhealthy, tired-out stomach. Neither can you feel good if you have a little irregularity in eating you have caused the stomach to get out of order. These little stomach troubles are signs of indigestion, which may and very often does turn into a bad case of dyspepsia. Don't allow this to go on a single day without doing something to overcome it. Take some good reliable and safe digestant like Kodol for Dyspepsia. Kodol is the best remedy known today for heart burn, belching and all troubles arising from a disordered digestion. It is pleasant to take and affords relief promptly. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Graft in German Prisons.

In Cologne, Germany, at a recent court trial, it was asserted that as soon as a well-dressed prisoner appeared in the prison he was beset with attentions from the wardens, all eager to act as middlemen between him and his relatives. They would convey letters, money and food, and for these services receive their reward from the relatives of the prisoners.

The postmaster of Guernsey, Mo., Daniel A. Bugh, says of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills, "I am doing so well, and improving so fast in health, that I cannot say too much for your kidney and bladder pills. I feel like a new man." DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are sold by J. H. Swan.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, dis- courage and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear. When the kidneys are out of order, the system is diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy, Swamp-Kidol is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. You may have a free, also pamphlet tell- ings of Swamp-Kidol about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kliner & Co., Birmingham, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Kidol, Dr. Kliner's Swamp-Kidol, and the address, Birmingham, N. Y., on every bottle.

Longfellow's School Days.

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the poet, received his early education in a school in Portland, Me. He was pronounced by the master to be "one of the best boys in school." He was a studious child and preferred the company of books to lively companions.

TO THE PUBLIC

All persons wishing to do dental work for them must have it done before December 15, 1907, as my office will be closed for two months from that date. G. B. Olcott, Dentist, Antioch, Ill.

Clean Food.

To eat or not to eat fresh foods, that is a question which will hardly be settled by general consent for some generations; but every one will agree on the wisdom of basing upon guarantees that our foodstuffs shall be clean, unadulterated and sound.

A Significant Prayer.

"May the Lord help you make Bucklen's Arnica Salve known to all," writes J. G. Jenkins, of Chapel Hill, N. C. "It quickly took the pain out of a felon for me and cured it in a wonderfully short time." Best on earth for sores, burns and wounds. Sold by J. H. Swan's drug store.

Dress by Inspiration.

Painful results are produced by the fondness of women for clothing themselves in anything they happen to take and nothing Good for forms and colors are regarded for their fitness without any regard for their fitness to the wearer. Truly intelligence in dress comes by inspiration alone and cannot be bought.

Monkey's Intelligence.

In the Fresno Zoological Garden a monkey of rare intelligence was discovered to be suffering from defective eyesight, caused by a cataract. A surgeon performed an operation, relieving him of the trouble, and it was discovered that the monkey must wear glasses eventually. At first he fought right keepers when they attempted to put on the glasses, but ultimately he learned the value of the lenses so thoroughly that he now puts on his "spec" every morning and lays them in a safe place at night before he goes to sleep.

Free catarrh treatments are being mailed out free, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. These tests are proving to the people—without a penny's cost—the great value of this scientific prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Was Clothed in Tobacco.

A priest has been arrested at Agincourt, on the Franco-Belgian frontier, for smuggling. His luggage was full of cigars, and when he was stripped he was found to be wearing around his body a layer of tobacco and cigars over an inch in thickness. The man was clothed in tobacco, and 2,000 cigars were taken from the layer.

The Woman Suicide's Hat.

An interesting contribution to the study of feminine psychology has been made by the Hampstead (Eng.) coroner. "Women always take off their hats before committing suicide," said he.

Appendicitis

Is due in a large measure to abuse of the bowels, by employing drastic purgatives. To avoid all danger, use only Dr. King's New Life Pills, the safe, gentle cleanser and invigorator, guaranteed to cure all chronic biliousness, indigestion and jaundice. At J. H. Swan's drug store. 25c.

Heart Strength

Heart strength, of which Watson's means there is so much, is not only a matter of health, but of life. It is the power that enables a man to do his duty, to stand up to his work, to resist the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil. Without this power, a man is a weakling, a coward, a failure. Watson's Heart Strength is the only remedy that will give you this power. It is a powerful, yet gentle, medicine that will strengthen your heart, and give you the strength to do all that you set your mind to. It is sold by all druggists, and by J. H. Swan.

The sixty-fourth anniversary sale of the G. R. Lyon & Sons, the Waukegan merchants will begin on Saturday and continue till the 27th of this month. On another page of this issue will be found a page ad of this old and established firm.

It is reported that W. L. Watson & sons who have had charge of the Sylvan Beach hotel for the past two years, have rented the Lehman hotel at Lake Villa and will conduct the two hotels the coming year.

There will be an oyster supper and dance at the East-side hotel at Fox Lake on Thursday evening, November 28. A good time is guaranteed to all who attend. Tickets 50 cents, ladies free. Supper 25 cents extra.

The baby show and chicken pie supper given by the ladies of the Antioch Hill-side cemetery society on Wednesday afternoon was well attended in spite of the unfavorable weather, although many babies would have been present had it been otherwise. Sixteen babies were on exhibition and each one received a pretty little souvenir spoon in remembrance of the occasion. The supper was very well patronized despite the storm which was at its worst about the supper hour and those who partook of the good things to eat were unanimous in declaring the supper to be a success in more ways than one.

The Antioch News and the Chicago Daily Tribune both one year for the sum of only $3.00. Or the Antioch News and Chicago Daily Inter Ocean both one year for the sum of $3.00. Or the Metropolitan Magazine, National Home Journal, Dress-making at Home, and Farmer's Wife, all monthly magazines in connection with the Antioch News and the Chicago Daily Inter Ocean all one year for the sum of $4.00. This offer is made to all new subscribers who pay in advance and to all old subscribers who pay up arrears and a 10c year in advance. Read this over carefully and let us hear from you. The Inter Ocean offer holds good only until January 15, 1903.

On Saturday night next the Good Fellowship Glee Club of Chicago, consisting of twenty young men will give an amateur minstrel show in black face at the Antioch opera house. The performance will be in two parts, the first part comprising of coon songs and ballads interspersed with jokes and the second part a farce entitled "Coonsville Justice" which is a laugh from beginning to end. The show which starts at eight will last about two hours, after which Hanneman's orchestra will furnish the music for a dance. The boys are a part of the crowd who have spent the week ends at the CCCC cottage at Ingleside for the past two seasons and it was their serenading and songs there that suggested a repetition of one of their minstrel shows which they have given annually for three years, Antioch being selected as the most suitable place to give it. Arrangements have been under way for over two months, and notwithstanding the fact that a professional colored troupe appeared in town but a little more than a week previous, a full house is anticipated, and a good time is in store for all.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the Odd Fellows and friends for their kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of our beloved brother. We also thank the singers and those who furnished flowers.

Resolutions of Respect Adopted by Lake Lodge No. 723.

Whereas It has pleased the Supreme Ruler of the Universe in his infinite wisdom to call from the trouble and heart aches of this life our brother, Henry W. Ingalls, and

Whereas Through the agency of the Devine Father the cold hand of death hath stricken from our midst a loyal and loving brother and whose family is now bowed down with grief and sorrow, therefore be it Resolved, That as Brothers of Lake Lodge No. 723, I. O. O. F., we extend to our Brother's sorrowing family our sincere and heart felt sympathy in this their dark hour of grief and affliction and to whom the vacant chair suggests many pleasant memories of the past, let us commend them to the care of a loving Father who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That our records be made sacred to the memory by spreading upon them a copy of these resolutions and a copy sent to our Brother's family and that these resolutions be published in the Antioch News.

Heart Interest.

Men love naturally all that comes from the heart, all that is great, all that dazzles, and even all that is strange. A heroic act or a single act of generosity moves them infallibly and provokes their enthusiasm. They see these acts; they do not see the justice in the heart of the just—Jules Simon.

PANAMA BOND ISSUE

SECRETARY CORTELYOU ASKS
BIDS FOR $50,000,000.

RELIEF FOR THE COUNTRY

Treasury Also Will Put Out $100,000,000 in Certificates of Indebtedness to Run One Year.

Washington.—Secretary Cortelyou Sunday night made the important announcement that as a means of affording relief to the financial situation, the treasury would issue $50,000,000 of Panama bonds, and $100,000,000 certificates of indebtedness, or so much thereof as may be necessary. The certificates will run for one year and will bear three per cent. interest.

Secretary Cortelyou says that the Panama bonds will afford most substantial relief, as the law provides that they be used as a basis for additional national bank circulation. He also states that the proceeds from the sale of certificates can be made directly available at points where the need is most urgent, and especially for the movement of crops, which, he says, "if properly accelerated, will give the greatest relief and result in the most immediate financial returns." The secretary calls attention to the attractiveness of the bonds and certificates as absolutely safe investments.

Secretary Cortelyou adds that these relief measures will enable him to meet public expenditures without withdrawing for that purpose any appreciable amount of the public moneys now deposited in national banks throughout the country. Two treasury circulars, one inviting proposals for the issue of bonds, and the other asking for the certificates, will be sent out under date of November 18.

In his letter to Secretary Cortelyou, approving the treasury plans, President Roosevelt states that he has been assured that the leaders in congress have under consideration a currency measure "which will meet in permanent fashion the needs of the situation, and which I believe will be passed at an early date after congress convenes two weeks hence."

The president also calls attention to what is needed most at this time is that the people should "realize how fundamentally sound business conditions in this country are, and how absurd it is to permit themselves to get into a panic and create a stringency by hoarding their savings instead of trusting perfectly sound banks."

ILLINOIS PROPERTY VALUES.

Results of Work by State Board of Equalization.

Springfield, Ill. — The state board of equalization, which has been in session ten days after the limit allowed by law, adjourned Wednesday morning. The report of the railroad committee shows a total assessment of railroads in Illinois to be about $100,000,000, an increase of $5,000,000 over 1906. The assessment on capital stock of corporations in the state is $10,608,100, about $2,000,000 less than the assessed valuation for 1906. This is explained by the fact that the tangible stock of Chicago corporations has been assessed at a much higher valuation by the local assessors than last year.

In 1907 the total equalized value of personal property in Illinois is $246,819,650. The total equalized value of lands is $371,904,086. The total equalized value of lots is $499,898,662. The equalized value of personal property, lands and lots in 1907 is $1,138,622,398, compared to $1,015,653,662 in 1906.

HARRIS SUE FOR $20,000.

Ex-Treasurer of Pennsylvania Accused of Accepting Bribe.

Pittsburg, Pa. — The most surprising of the many sensations which have developed since the failure of the Enterprise National bank of Allegheny, in 1905, occurred Wednesday when Thomas Rinaker, receiver of the defunct institution, entered a suit in assumpsit in the United States district court against ex-State Treasurer of Pennsylvania Frank G. Harris, claiming $20,000 with interest from October 23, 1903.

This sum, it is charged, was paid Harris by Cashier Clark, of the bank, as a bribe for his part in permitting the promoters of the Pennsylvania Development company to use the funds of the Enterprise bank and the state.

Bryan Says He Will Accept. Lincoln, Neb. — Through the editorial columns of The Commoner William Jennings Bryan declares he will not seek nor ask for the nomination for president, but if it is the desire of the rank and file of the party that he should have it, he would accept it cheerfully.

Lost Pay Roll of $22,000 Is Found.

Trinidad, Col. — The $22,000 worth of pay checks for the miners of the Carbon Coal & Coke company, which were lost a few days ago from the stage that runs between Longdale and Cokedale, were found by boys and returned to the company.

Hamburg Broker Kills Himself.

Hamburg.—J. Ballin, a stock broker and a brother of Albert Ballin, director general of the Hamburg-American Steamship line, committed suicide with a revolver Friday.

BARNEY COMMITS SUICIDE

LATE HEAD OF KNICKERBOCKER COMPANY KILLS SELF.

Deed Attributed to Distress of Mind Over Loss of Fortune and Standing.

New York.—Charles Tracy Barney, the deposed president of the Knickerbocker Trust company, and until recently a power in the financial world, shot and killed himself Thursday in his home. His loans with the bank, it is said, are amply secured, and when he was forced from its presidency he was, to all intents and purposes, eliminated as a factor in banking circles.

What ill effects his unexpected taking off might have had on the financial situation generally had long since been discounted. In distress of mind over the dissipation of his private fortune and the loss of high standing among business associates, intimate acquaintances find the hidden drift that broke his health and reason.

Much of his personal wealth might have been saved. At the time that Barney was dying at his home at East Thirty-eighth street and Park avenue, and surgeons probed for a bullet that, misdirected by a nerveless hand, had entered the body below the heart, a handful of friends at a downtown office were concluding an arrangement by which the loose ends of the banker's many enterprises were to be gathered up and financed by a stock company which, if not wholly successful, would at least rescue from the wreckage sufficient to insure the promoter's future financially. The conference broke up at the announcement that Mr. Barney was dead.

Mr. Barney, who was in his fifty-seventh year, shot himself early in the day, while alone in his chamber at the rear of the second floor of his home. The bullet entered below the heart and lodged under the left shoulder blade. He died about 2:30 o'clock after suffering intensely.

Kansas City, Mo.—J. B. Thomas, cashier of the Bank of Albany, of Albany, Mo., a prominent Democratic politician and former grand master of the Masonic Order of Missouri, committed suicide at the Midland hotel in this city Friday, leaving no message to explain his action.

There is no evidence that the affairs of the Bank of Albany are involved in the tragedy, the surviving officers having asserted emphatically that they knew of no reason for the suicide of Cashier Thomas.

AFTER A "GROCERS' TRUST."

Colorado Attorney General Attacks an Alleged Combine.

Denver, Col.—Attorney General William H. Dixon began an action under the common law in the Denver district court Thursday with a view to breaking up the so-called grocers' trust, operating in Colorado.

The Retail Merchants' Association of Colorado and its branches in 63 cities and towns of the state, the Denver Jobbers' association, the Denver Retail Grocers' association and about 20 jobbers are named as defendants and injunctions are sought to restrain them from arbitrating, from fixing prices and from refusing to sell supplies to retail grocers unless they charge the prices fixed by the alleged trust. The complaint alleges that the prices of foodstuffs have been maintained 20 per cent. higher than they would have been if there had been no trust.

SHIPYARDS TO BE CLOSED.

American Shipbuilding Company Begins Laying Off Its Men.

Cleveland, O.—At a meeting of the directors of the American Shipbuilding company here Thursday it was decided to retrench, in view of the uncertainty of the general financial condition, by shutting down practically all of its plants along the great lakes at once and deferring the usual dividend upon the common stock of the company.

At Lorain, where 1,800 men are employed, 1,000 were discharged, and Friday night most of the remaining 800 will be let go. At Bay City, Mich., 400 men were let out. The Detroit and Wyandotte yards will not be closed for the present. At South Chicago and at Superior, Wis., hundreds of men will be taken from the payroll.

Fish Again Hits at Harriman. New York.—Stuyvesant Fish again attacked E. H. Harriman when he sent out a letter to all stockholders inclosing with it a copy of the Interstate commerce commission's report on the Harriman investigation and making a plea to preserve the individuality of the Illinois Central railroad which he claims Mr. Harriman is making merely subsidiary to the Union Pacific. He solicits new proxies and an extension of the old ones in other cases where they have already been granted.

Orders Seven Submarines.

Washington.—Secretary Metcalf signed contracts Saturday afternoon aggregating in amount $2,270,000 with the Electric Boat company of New York for the construction of seven submarine torpedo boats.

Fatally Hurt in Football Game.

Warsaw, Ind.—James Orcut was fatally hurt during a football game here Saturday between two high school teams. His skull was fractured as the result of a collision with another player.

HOW THE PEOPLE OBJECT.

Attitude Toward That New Coin Without the Motto.

TAFT IS AT VLADIVOSTOK

SECRETARY GREETED THERE BY OFFICERS OF THE CZAR.

Starts for St. Petersburg Tuesday and Will Sail from Hamburg Without Visiting Emperor William.

Vladivostok. — Secretary Taft arrived here at noon Sunday on board the converted cruiser Rainbow. The Rainbow was conveyed by the Russian gunboat detailed to escort them up the harbor. Salutes were exchanged with the land batteries. As the Rainbow steamed in there could be seen the wreck of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer which was sunk during the recent naval mutiny.

The Rainbow anchored off shore, guarded by the Chaitanog and the Galveston. The secretary and his party will remain on board their steamer until their departure from Vladivostok over the trans-Siberian railroad for St. Petersburg at seven o'clock on the morning of November 19. An imperial car has been placed at Mr. Taft's disposal for this journey and the emperor of Russia has detailed military and naval aids to accompany him.

Gen. Peluga, the commandant of this port, and other naval, military and civil officials called upon Mr. Taft Sunday afternoon. It is probable that from St. Petersburg Mr. Taft will journey direct to Hamburg and sail for New York on December 7 on board the steamer President Grant.

Berlin, Nov. 18.—Secretary Taft has definitely and finally decided not to visit Emperor William. He sent a telegram to Charlemagne Tower, the American ambassador to Germany, two days ago, expressing his regret that he would not be able to see the emperor in England. To this Mr. Tower replied by a message in which he pointed out certain considerations which might lead Secretary Taft to change his plans. A second telegram has now been received from the secretary in which he reaffirms that he is obliged to proceed directly to America and requests Mr. Tower to transmit to his majesty his very deep regret. Mr. Taft will take a steamer at Hamburg early in December.

Paris, Nov. 18.—Officials of the government learned with the greatest regret Sunday that Secretary Taft is not likely to visit France on his way home, as they had planned to extend to him many honors.

PHONES FRIEND; KILLS SELF.

Californian Tells of Shooting Daughter and Takes Poison.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—After calling a friend on the telephone and telling him that he had shot his daughter and intended to commit suicide, Maj. Frank McLaughlin, a prominent politician, swallowed prussic acid. When the friend arrived McLaughlin was lying on the floor dying and the girl was found in an adjoining room, fatally injured.

McLaughlin, who had been prominent in state affairs for 25 years, had felt severe financial reverses, and it is thought he had allowed it to prey upon his mind until he determined to slay himself after first putting his daughter out of the reach of poverty.

Alexander Fries, Chemist, Is Dead. Cincinnati.—Alexander Fries, head of the firm of Alexander Fries & Bro., New York and Cincinnati, and one of the most eminent chemists of the country, died here Thursday night.

O'Leary City, Alaska, Burned Down.

Fairbanks, Alaska.—The business district of O'Leary City was destroyed by fire Friday night. The only buildings standing now in the town are the Grand hotel, the Arctic Brotherhood hall and E. M. Miller & Co.'s and Skookum Johnson's buildings.

Costly Blaze in St. Louis.

St. Louis.—The establishment of the Mills & Averill Tailoring company, Broadway and Pine streets, was gutted by fire Sunday, the total loss being estimated at $100,000.

WOMAN STIRS UP BAD RIOT.

Louisville Strikers Inflamed by Wife of Conductor.

Louisville, Ky.—Two policemen were injured by bricks, five men were arrested and a number of persons clubbed as the result of a riotous demonstration made by striking street car employees and their friends Sunday afternoon.

That the affair did not result more seriously was due to the prompt arrival of police reserves, who broke up the crowd before it could be further inflamed. A mass meeting of strike sympathizers was held at a hall in the central part of the city, at which heated speeches were made, but the crowd did not become fired until an address was delivered by the wife of a discharged conductor. Her remarks so worked on the feelings of the assembly that when the meeting broke up an impromptu parade of over 2,000 persons was formed and marched about the business district. There was a large sprinkling of women and they incited the crowd to stone the cars. The fight with the police followed.

CALLS OKLAHOMA LEGISLATURE.

Gov. Haskell Summons It to Meet on December 2.

Guthrie, Okla. — Gov. Charles N. Haskell has issued a call for the legislature of the new state to meet on December 2. The place where the session will be called is left open. This gives reasons for fear here that the legislature might be called to meet at some other place than Guthrie if the city does not offer a place for the legislature to meet at a figure to suit the governor and the legislators. Shawnee has offered quarters for the state officers and a place for the legislature to meet free of charge.

The Oklahoma legislature is composed of 109 representatives and 44 senators. The Republicans have only 17 members of the house and five members of the senate. Gov. Haskell does not outline any proposed legislation in the call.

INVITES ALL GOVERNORS.

President Announces Convention on Natural Resources.

Washington.—President Roosevelt has invited the governors of the states and territories to meet him at the White House May 13, 14 and 15 next, to discuss the question of means to conserve the natural resources of the country. Invitations are to be extended to the members of both houses of congress and to the inland waterways commission.

Sets Aside Murder Verdict.

Grand Haven, Mich.—A jury Friday found William Shimmel guilty of the murder, 18 months ago, of Martin Golden, a storekeeper at Denison, but Circuit Judge Padgham immediately set aside the verdict and severely scored the jury, declaring the evidence, which was entirely circumstantial, did not in any way warrant the verdict. The judge released Shimmel on $500 bond.

Outburst on Sun's Surface.

Oxford, Eng.—A remarkable outburst on the sun was observed by Prof. Ambau, director of the Radcliffe observatory, at 11:45 Friday morning. An immense flame shot up at the rate of over 10,000 miles a minute until it reached a height of 325,000 miles. At ten minutes past 12 it broke into fragments and disappeared.

Kills Two Chicken Thieves.

New York.—Lyman J. King, proprietor of a poultry farm in the Bronx, has been missing chickens recently, and when an automatic alarm awoke him early Sunday he seized a revolver and, hurrying outdoors, fired at two forms outlined in the moonlight. Bruno Puella, 22 years old, of Yonkers, fell dead with a bullet in the head. Parlo Lagenja, about the same age, received a bullet in the side, another in the leg and, as he fled, a third in the back, which killed him. King surrendered to the police.

WARNER IS CONVICTED

"SECOND DEGREE" VERDICT FOR MISS NORLING'S SLAYER.

WISHED IT WERE FIRST

J. W. Reeve, Who Caused Three Deaths by Firing Carload of Dynamite in Colorado, Also Found Guilty.

New York.—Frank H. Warner was convicted Monday night of murder in the second degree for the killing of Esther C. Norling on July 23 last.

"I'm sorry they didn't make it first degree," was Warner's only comment when the verdict was returned.

Warner, who had known Miss Norling for some years, went to the store in which she was employed in Forty-second street and shot her without warning.

He escaped into a large office building and before he was followed got out through a window. He then went to a hat store owned by John C. Wilson, a life-long friend, and shot him. Wilson died soon after. Warner was captured by a truckman armed with a cotton hook, as he was leaving Wilson's store.

Patrolman Thomas Walsh was discharged from the police force on charges of cowardice for not following Warner into the office building after he shot Miss Norling.

Warner's defense was insanity. He has not been tried on the indictment charging the killing of Wilson.

Boulder, Col.—Murder in the second degree with a recommendation for the minimum sentence of ten years' imprisonment was the verdict returned Monday by the jury in the case of J. W. Reeve, a railroad brakeman, who confessed that he and another railroad man set the fire in the Colorado & Southern railway yards here on the night of August 10 last which caused the explosion of a carload of dynamite, killing three men and destroying several hundred thousand dollars' worth of property.

It was urged on behalf of Reeve, who is a member of a well-known New Jersey family, that he was intoxicated at the time he created the crime and did not know there was any dynamite in the railroad cars. The motive for starting the fire was sympathy with the Colorado & Southern switchmen, who were on strike.

SWITCHMEN ARE ENJOINED.

Threatened Strike at Buffalo Is Checked by Court.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Judge Hazel Monday afternoon in the United States circuit court granted a temporary injunction, upon behalf of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad company, restraining the Switchmen's Union of North America, Buffalo lodge No. 4, and its officers, from breaking an agreement alleged to exist between the company and the switchmen's union.

This agreement provides for the scale of wages to be paid the switchmen, and the petition for the order states that a strike is threatened which will place this contract in jeopardy.

The injunction is returnable November 23. At the office of the attorneys of the company it was stated that the action was taken at the urgent request of mercantile bodies and large individual shippers, who feared the results that might ensue from the tying up of even one trunk line at this time, when every car was being utilized in transporting the crops of the country to the coast.

FATAL COLLISION IN A FOG.

Engineer Killed and Four Trainmen Injured in Ohio.

Steubenville, O.—In a head-on collision between a freight train and an engine running light on the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, just south of this city Monday night, Engineer Martin Gilday was instantly killed, two trainmen perhaps fatally injured and two others seriously hurt. Both engines were wrecked and several cars splintered.

FLURRY IS CAUSE OF SUICIDE.

Worry Over Situation Leads Manufacturer to Kill Self.

Rockford, Ill.—Worry over the financial situation caused Oscar Nelson, a wealthy business man, to commit suicide by inhaling illuminating gas at his home here Monday. He formerly was a prominent furniture manufacturer and alderman at Duluth, Minn., where he lived for 20 years.

American Made Turkish Admiral.

Constantinople.—Commodore R. D. Buckman, an American and naval advisor to the sultan, has been promoted to the rank of rear admiral in the Turkish navy with the title of pasha.

Calabria Shaken Again by Quakes.

Reggio di Calabria, Italy.—The province of Reggio di Calabria was visited by two severe earthquakes Monday afternoon. They were especially severe at Branchaleon, Feruzzano and Bianco. The people, who had returned to their homes after the earthquake of October 27, again became panic stricken and fled to the country. Some of them are camped in the open air, while others have taken refuge in subterranean grottoes. The gravity of the situation is increased by the inclemency of the weather.

VETERAN OF THREE WARS.

A Pioneer of Colorado and Nebraska.

Matthias Campbell, veteran of the civil war and two Indian wars, and a pioneer of Colorado, now living at 218 East Nebraska Street, Blair, Neb., says: "I had such pains in my back for a long time that I could not turn in bed, and at times there was an almost total stoppage of the urine. My wife and I have both used Doan's Kidney Pills for what doctors diagnosed as advanced kidney troubles, and both of us have been completely cured."

FOUND OUT JUST IN TIME.

Or Finger Bowl Would Have Been Put to Novel Use.

The late William Cassidy, one-time editor of the Albany Argus, possessed the traditional Irish wit. On one occasion, a number of years ago, he was a guest at a political banquet in Albany. At that time finger bowls were seldom used, and their correct usage (a passing fad) meant to dip a corner of the napkin in the water and thereafter with daintily cleanse the finger tips. Most of the men present eyed the innovation, when introduced at dessert, narrowly and uncertainly. One after another ended by plunging the hand into the crystal dish. But Mr. Robert Pruyn, a well-known Albany gentleman, correctly moistened a bit of his napkin and laved his fingers. Mr. Cassidy watched him admiringly, not having as yet touched his own glass. "That's good," he whispered to a neighbor. "That's good. If Pruyn hadn't done that I should have put my foot in it."—Harper's Weekly.

Missed His Vocation.

Reginald de Koven, the composer, tells of a grocer and a druggist who attended a Wagner concert. As the program did not please them they began talking on music in general and on Wagner in particular.

"Another example of the fact that every man wants to do something out of his line," said the druggist. "That's all right," assented the grocer. "Now, I'm a grocer, but I've always wanted to be a banker." "You'd probably fail," added the druggist. "Look at me. I'm a success as a druggist, yet I've always wanted to write a book. This man Wagner tries his hand at music. Just listen to it. And yet we all know he builds good parlor cars!"—Success.

Not to Be Thought Of.

There was once a multi-millionaire (he was very "multi," indeed) who spent immense sums of money on his children. They had everything, including four automobiles and a steam yacht each.

Still they were not satisfied. "Can you not," they implored, "spend a little time with us, now and then?"

"Time!" cried the multi-millionaire, greatly shocked. "No, no! You are dreaming. It is impossible." This fable teaches that time is not money, in any practical sense.—Exchange.

His Word Not Good.

John and Jim agreed to settle a difference by fighting it out. It was understood that whoever wanted to quit should cry "nough!" John got Jim down and was hammering him soundly, when Jim cried "nough!" But John paid no attention to his cry and kept on pounding him. Again and again Jim called out "nough!" But John paid no heed and kept busy with his fists. A boy standing near asked: "Why don't you let the feller up? He's yelled 'nough!'" "But he's such a liar you can't believe him."

SCHOOL TEACHERS

Also Have Things to Learn.

"For many years I have used coffee and refused to be convinced of its bad effect upon the human system," writes a veteran school teacher.

"Ten years ago I was obliged to give up my much loved work in the public schools after years of continuous labor. I had developed a well defined case of chronic coffee poisoning."

"The troubles were constipation, flutterings of the heart, a thumping in the top of my head, and various parts of my body, twitching of my limbs, shaking of my head, and at times after exertion, a general 'gone' feeling with a toper's desire for very strong coffee. I was a nervous wreck for years."

"A short time ago friends came to visit us and they brought a package of Postum with them, and urged me to try it. I was prejudiced because some years ago I had drunk a cup of weak, tasteless stuff called Postum which I did not like at all."

"This time, however, my friend made the Postum according to directions on the package, and it won me. Suddenly I found myself improving in a most decided fashion."

"The odor of boiling coffee no longer tempts me. I am so greatly benefited by Postum that if I continue to improve as I am now, I'll begin to think I have found the Fountain of Perpetual Youth. This is no fancy letter but stubborn facts which I am glad to make known."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

DECORATING A LIVING ROOM.

Soft Draperies Do Away with Appearance of Stiffness.

Miss D. C. is dissatisfied with the stiffness of her living room, writes Kate Greenleaf Locke. The chairs, she says, are of oak, with cane seats; there is a piano, a couch, a mirror, a table and a music stand in the way of furniture. The walls are cream and pink in tone, being a design of pink roses on a cream colored background. The rug in center of floor is of dark velvet. She wishes to use about $30 for its improvement.

I can well understand that your room without soft draperies of any kind or easy chairs would be stiff and uncomfortable. You have failed to tell me what kind of curtains you have at your windows.

Then, I see from your diagram, you have a wide bay window on one side of the room, and in this window I see a feature which may be made to add much to the attractiveness of the whole room.

Buy enough flowered muslin (it can be had for 25 and even 20 cents a yard) to make soft, full easy curtains for all of these windows. If you select a design which harmonizes in a general way with your wall paper you can use these on the lower sashes of your windows whatever the other drapery may be.

You will find that pink roses on a white ground, with green foliage against the light of this window will cheer and brighten your room wonderfully.

Now add to this effect by placing either on the window sill or on a light stand a handsome fern. The money spent for a really flourishing plant will be well invested, as there is nothing which goes further toward furnishing than a handsome plant.

Cover your couch with a rich shade of crimson denim, making the cover to fit carefully with a valance of shallow loose plaits. The couch pillows for use should be covered with the same denim.

Norwegian Prune Pudding.

This is an inexpensive and tasty pudding, good at any season. Pick over and thoroughly wash one-half pound of prunes. Put into a stewpan with two cups of cold water, cover and let stand an hour. Bring to the boiling point in the same water and simmer slowly until the prunes are soft. Take out the pits. Crack some of them and add the kernels to the prunes to flavor. Add also one cupful of sugar, an inch stick of cinnamon, a cup and a quarter of boiling water and again bring to the boiling point. Simmer five minutes. Dissolve one-third cup cornstarch in just enough cold water to pour easily, add to the prune mixture and cook ten minutes, stirring constantly. Remove the cinnamon, turn into a mold that has been rinsed out with cold water and chill. Serve with powdered sugar and whipped or liquid cream, flavored with vanilla.

Use Bran in Water.

To wash pongee, silk, dimities so they will look like new, launder in the following manner: For just one waist put a pint of bran in a white muslin bag and pour as much boiling water over the bag as you will need to wash the waist. When the water is cool enough to put the hands in squeeze the bag several times. Add a teaspoonful of borax to the water and wash the waist in it. Rinse and when dry iron on the wrong side. Do not starch, as the bran stiffens the material sufficiently. If you have ever had much bother washing silk or pongee you will be delightfully surprised and pleased with the results.

To Fry Kidneys.

Cut up in slices three-quarters of an inch thick two beef kidneys. Let soak in vinegar and water about three hours. Drain and dredge in flour. Cut in thin slices one large onion; fry in butter and turn into vessel. Also fry kidneys a nice brown on both sides and turn into vessel. Make a thick pan gravy. Add three tablespoonfuls of catsup, a good pinch salt and season with salt and a little pepper. Pour this in vessel and let boil two hours slowly. Enough for four people.

Finnan Haddie as Men Like It.

Broiled finnan haddie with sauce tartare is a prime favorite in a restaurant which business men frequent. The fish is washed and soaked for about an hour in cold water; put for five minutes in hot water. Then it is wiped dry, spread with lemon juice and butter and broiled for a quarter of an hour. The sauce tartare is made by seasoning mayonnaise with minced pickles and green and red peppers minced.

Hose Supporters.

Cut off the legs of stockings that the feet are past doing anything with, measure stockings you are wearing from waist down to top of stockings. Split cutoff leg down, sew it firmly to top of stockings, by machine is best, then fasten about the waist with safety pins back and front. They are comfortable and no coming down or getting out of order.

More Uses for Bread.

Save your scraps of bread; dry well and grind through your meat chopper. They are excellent for thickening berry pies; also make delicious "Bread Torta," the German fruit cake, and bread puddings.

Supper Salad.

Take a half cabbage, chop and mix well with a good boiled salad dressing. Just before serving add a can of salmon; stir well together with a fork garnish with parsley and lemons.

ENCOURAGING FACTS

THOSE CONTEMPLATING CHANGE OF RESIDENCE SHOULD READ THEM.

The other day the writer was in the Office of the Canadian Government at St. Paul, Minnesota. On the windows of the building were signs to the effect that homesteads of 160 acres were given free to actual settlers, and in the windows were displays of wheat, oats, barley, other grains and vegetables, which he was told were grown in Western Canada. This could be readily believed for in no other country on the Continent would it be possible to grow such splendid specimens. The world is now pretty well advised that in the growing of such cereals as have been named and vegetables as well the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have no competitor. For several years past specimens have been exhibited at State and County Fairs throughout the State, and these exhibits are looked upon as one of the chief attractions. They have demonstrated what can be done in the climate of a country possessing a soil that will grow things. But that it was possible to grow vegetables such as were seen there seemed to create some doubt. But it was the case. And apples too. Not of course the splendid fruit grown in countries more congenial to such culture, but they were in evidence. Throughout Indiana, the hoosier farmers were forced to stop and think. When a similar exhibit was placed before them during the past few weeks, many of them were forced to stop and remark: "That is much ahead of anything we can do. The quality of the grain we have conceded, for has not so-and-so sent us samples grown on his own farm the like of which we had never seen before. But to think of the vegetables—and such vegetables. Why, we thought everything was frozen up there, and those turnips, cabbages, cauliflowers, beets, mangolds, pumpkins, and squashes are away ahead of anything we ever saw grow." That is the story everywhere. Thousands of Western Canada homesteaders, formerly United States citizens, are growing just such grain, just such vegetables, which yield them a splendid profit with little outlay on the farms that they have secured from the Government of the Dominion of Canada at the nominal cost of $10 for 160 acres. If adjoining land is wanted it can be secured from the railway companies or from private individuals at moderate prices and reasonable terms. By placing your name and address on a postal card and addressing it to the Canadian Government Agent, whose name appears elsewhere, a copy of "Last Best West" telling you all about it will be sent you free.

FOUR SHAFTS OF HUMOR.

Pithy Remarks from One of the Foremost Jokesmiths.

With the truly artistic temperament the bird in the bush has scant notion of doubling its value by changing to the hand.

A has-been is a man who has spent his time with hair vigors, electric brushes and newspaper recipes, when he should have been winning a laurel wreath to cover his ignominy with.

When you enter a shop state just what you want. For then the merchant can go intelligently to work to sell you something else. The great law of commerce is to sell people what they don't want. What they do want will sell itself.

But, probably it is no harder to live up to your reputation when you are young than it will be to live it down when you are older.—Puck.

ITCHING RASH IS YEARS.

Girl's Rash Spread and Grew Worse Under Specialist's Care—Perfect Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"When my daughter was a baby she had a breaking out behind the ears. The doctor said that she would outgrow it and it did get somewhat better until she was about fifteen years old, and after that she could get nothing that would drive it away. She was always applying something in the way of salves. It troubled her behind the knees, opposite the elbows, back of the neck and ears, under the chin, and then it got on the face. That was about three years ago. She took treatment with a specialist and seemed to get worse all the time. We were then advised to try the Cuticura Remedies, and now I don't see any breaking out. M. Curley, 11-19 Sixteenth St., Bay City, Mich., May 20, 1906."

DOCTORS ORGANIZE UNION.

Toronto Physicians Fix Higher Scale of Prices.

Toronto, Ont.—The doctors of this city west of Yonge street have formed a union under the name "No. 11 Territorial Division of the College of Physicians and Surgeons." The objects of the organization are to improve the condition of the profession against quacks, establish minimum fees and amend lodge terms. The lowest fee for medical examination for fraternal societies has been fixed at $2, while the minimum fee for minor operations has been fixed at $10, and that for major operations at $50. For a first visit to a patient $2 hereafter will be charged, and $1 for each subsequent visit, while the fee for night visits will be doubled, being fixed at $3. The charge for an office visit has been made $1, including prescription, while to give anaesthetics $5 will be charged.

Troublesome Growth.

"Does the child ever keep still a minute?" asked the woman as the youngster sprawled noisily over the couch in a dozen squirming positions at once, it seemed to her.

"No," answered his mother. "They are growing when they do that, they say."

"Will you please ask him to stop growing?" implored the woman, "just for this week while he is visiting me?"

Where Legislature Meets Every Year.

There are now only six states in the United States whose legislatures meet every year. In the others the legislatures meet only once in two years, and this is true of the great states of Pennsylvania and Illinois. Only the legislatures of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Georgia, South Carolina and Rhode Island meet once a year.

In the Church.

"Of course," said Tess at Miss Yerner's wedding to Mr. Timmid, "the bride looks lovely, as brides always do."

"Yes," replied Jess, "but the bridegroom doesn't. He appears rather run down."

NATURE PROVIDES FOR SICK WOMEN

a more potent remedy in the roots and herbs of the field than was ever produced from drugs.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines and Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in her study of roots and herbs and their power over disease discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value. During its record of more than thirty years, its long list of actual cures of those serious ills peculiar to women, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person and every thinking woman.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful functions, weakness, displacements, ulceration or inflammation, backache, flatulency, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

No other remedy in the country has such a record of cures of female ills, and thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound and what it has done for them.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. For twenty-five years she has been advising sick women free of charge. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and as her assistant for years before her decease advised under her immediate direction. Address, Lynn, Mass.

LAKE VILLA

Harry Gratz has been seriously ill with appendicitis.

Mrs. Hesselgrave has moved her furniture to Kansas City.

Chas. Lewin is visiting relatives and friends here this week.

Tom Burnett of Antioch was an over Sunday visitor here.

C. B. Dicks returned Monday from a hunting trip in central Illinois.

Mrs. Cora Bailey of Waukegan visited her sister, Mrs. Russ Gonyo, this week.

The Misses Alice Sheehan and Irene LaBeaux spent a few days with Lillian McMahon.

The lovers of fun and music were entertained by a minstrel show at the local opera house Friday night.

The stork hovered over town one night last week and left a pretty baby girl at the Russ Gonyo residence.

Don't forget to attend the basket social at the Cribb school. Ladies are requested to bring lunch for two.

On Thursday evening a farewell surprise party was given on Lola and Avis Nelson, who will this week depart for their new home in Texas.

A gang of workmen are laying a brick walk on both sides of the railroad track leading to the station platform. It will be a great improvement.

The business men of Lake Villa will give their annual oyster supper on Thursday evening, Nov. 21, at six o'clock, in the parlors of the M. E. church. H. P. Lowry will act as chef, and it is stated he can make a "swell" oyster stew.

GRAYSLAKE

Mr. Louis Bradway, wife and daughters spent Sunday with friends in Grayslake.

Last Saturday Mr. Ed. Adams moved his family into the house vacated by E. J. Higley and wife.

Fay Brandstetter of Chicago made a visit to his home Saturday on his motor-cycle, and it is certainly a hummer.

Mr. Cantway went to Chicago last week Monday and returned Thursday bringing with him his wife and children. At present they are in the building belonging to E. B. Sherman, corner of Lake and Slusser streets.

Hereafter the Woman's Club will meet Thursdays alternately with the B. I. G. Club. The first meeting will be held this Thursday, Nov. 21, at the home of Miss Wheeler, instead of Miss Druse, as announced. The second lesson in the Oct. magazine will be discussed.

Monday evening at the Congregational church a farewell reception was held for Mrs. Higley, who was always a great worker in the church and for the past ten years a member. Mrs. Mead, in behalf of the church members and friends, presented her with a silver spoon tray containing half a dozen dessert spoons. Refreshments were served after which all joined hands and sang "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

Sorosis Chapter O. E. S. gave a farewell reception to Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Higley Wednesday evening. A large attendance was present to attest their friendship and esteem for the honored Stars. Refreshments were served at about 10:30, after which the Worthy Patron, Dr. Crane, presented Mr. and Mrs. Higley with a beautiful gilt clock as a remembrance gift from the chapter to which presentation Mr. and Mrs. Higley both feelingly responded. Mrs. Higley was a charter member of this chapter and has always been faithful to its interests. They will both be greatly missed.

The two Higley families are now on their way to Dalhart, Texas, at which place or in the vicinity they expect to make their future home. Mr. Will Higley left early Friday morning with the carload of household goods and the old horse Dick. Mrs. Will Higley left Friday noon and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Higley Saturday noon. They spent several days among relatives in Chicago before taking their final departure from there Tuesday evening. They have all been honest, upright, enterprising citizens and will be greatly missed by Grayslake people, but we bespeak for them a welcome and many friends where ever they may go, for they will be a great help to any community. May health and prosperity be always with them is the wish of the many friends they left behind.

Polite English Shop Girls.

"I wish you would import more English shop girls," said the inveterate shopper, according to the New York Press. "I came across one yesterday. I was buying a little white evening dress. There were about a hundred styles to select from and I think I looked at fifty. I looked at so many that after an hour, when I had at last selected one, I said to her with an apologetic laugh: 'I've been an awful lot of trouble to you, haven't I? I think you'll wish I'll never come again.' 'Indeed, I will not,' she answered in her pretty English way. 'It was no trouble. None at all. It has been a pleasure to wait on you.'"

A Hard Debt to Pay.

"I owe a debt of gratitude that can never be paid off," writes G. S. Clark, of Westfield, Iowa, "for my rescue from death, by Dr. King's New Discovery. Both lungs were so seriously affected that death seemed imminent, when I commenced taking New Discovery. The ominous dry, hacking cough quit before the first bottle was used, and two more bottles made a complete cure." Nothing has ever equaled New Discovery for coughs, colds and all throat and lung complaints. Guaranteed by J. H. Swan, druggist. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Nothing Lacking.

When Helen Keller, the brilliant blind and deaf girl, met Dr. Furness, the Shakespearean scholar, he warned her not to let college professors tell her too many assumed facts about the life of Shakespeare; all we know, he said, is that Shakespeare was baptized, married and died.

"Well," she replied, "he seems to have done all the essential things."

BRISTOL

R. E. Sutherland of Kenosha spent Friday and Saturday with old friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. McVicar spent from Friday till Monday in Chicago.

Mrs. Ward Rowbottom of Chicago visited relatives here from Wednesday till Sunday.

Mr. J. Hunt of California who came here with the intention of spending the winter has been compelled to return on account of his asthma.

We omitted from our items last week the marriage of August Schriber to a Ripon lady which took place at the German M. E. parsonage Tuesday evening. They left for their home at Ripon on Wednesday.

On Thursday evening about thirty Mystic workers invaded the home of H. F. Hockney as a surprise and to remind him of his birthday. Various games were played and a general good time had.

Among those who attended the wedding of George Brown and Nettie Murdoch, were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Moore, of Cary Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Murdoch of Kenosha and Miss Lena Shields of Chicago.

Miss Nettie Murdoch and George Brown were married at the home of the bride's parents on Thursday of last week. Only the near relatives and friends were present after the wedding a sumptuous dinner was served after which the bride and groom left for Chicago.

A New Version.

"After hard study Hilary felt sure that he had the parable of the prodigal son by heart. All went well in the recitation until he came to the prodigal's return, which he described in this way: 'But when he was yet a great way off his father saw him and had compassion, and ran and fell on his neck and kissed him.' 'But, my son,' explained the mother, 'he fell on his son's neck and kissed him.' 'Oh! I thought he ran and fell on his own neck, and because he was an old man he must have broken it!'—Harper's Magazine.

Babies and children need prompt attention when suffering from coughs and colds. The best remedy for mothers to use is Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. Teach Doctors to Cook.

A Berlin physician is endeavoring to have a course in cooking introduced into the medical curriculum. He says doctors are in the habit of prescribing a diet for their patients with regard only to its chemical ingredients, forgetting the importance of an appetizing method of preparation.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidney nerves get weak, then these organs always fail. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the heart or kidneys. That is simply a makeshift. Get a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The restorative is prepared expressly for these weak inside nerves. Strengthen these nerves, build them up with Dr. Shoop's Restorative—tablets or liquid—and see how quickly help will come. Free sample test sent on request by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Your health is surely worth this simple test. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Easy Confinement

If you have cause to fear the pains of childbirth, remember that they are due to weakness, or disease, of the womanly organs, and that healthy women do not suffer, like weak ones.

'Cello of Great Age.

An old 'cello, which the owner at Mount Noorah, Victoria, sent to be repaired, was found to bear the label Nicolò Amati and the date 1624. There was also found a record of the instrument having been repaired by Louis Dandeh of Versailles in 1781 for Louis XVI.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's cough cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lunghealing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's cough cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. Sold by J. H. Swan.

WAS TOO EASILY PERSUADED.

One of the Troubles That Beset Honest Men in Politics.

I knew that a certain alderman in a certain town on Long Island was bitterly opposed to granting a franchise to an electric line, and soon after I heard that the franchise had been granted and that he had voted for it, I met him on the train and said: "Then you changed your mind about that franchise?" "Yes, I did to," he replied. "Any particular influence brought to bear?" "Yes. My wife persuaded me into it." "And who persuaded you wife?" "Her brother." "And was he persuaded?" "Yes, a lawyer persuaded him." "And the lawyer?" "Well, I reckon it was the president of the company that persuaded him. I stood out and stood out, but the persuasion was too great." "I have been told on good authority," I continued after a bit, "that the company gave the lawyer $1,500 to persuade with." "You don't mean it!" gasped the alderman. "But I do. Yes, sir, an even $1,500." "Then he's a durned skunk and ought to be shown up. He persuaded the whole family of us for $350 and put the rest in his pocket! That's what a man gets for being honest!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

But the strongest point about Scott's Emulsion is that you don't have to be sick to get results from it.

It keeps up the athlete's strength, puts fat on thin people, makes a fretful baby happy, brings color to a pale girl's cheeks, and prevents coughs, colds and consumption.

"IN GOD WE TRUST"

Presbyterian Brotherhood Does Not Agree with the President's View of the Words.

Cincinnati, Nov. 20.—Among the resolutions adopted by the convention of the Presbyterian Brotherhood of America was one urging congress to restore the motto "In God We Trust" on coins. The resolution expresses regret that the words have been omitted and the hope that congress will take action to restore them.

This may be considered a response to President Roosevelt, who has just written a letter in reply to protests against the omission of the motto on the new gold coins. The president's letter says there is no law requiring the stamping of the motto on coins, and that he had directed that it be omitted. He says the use of the words serves no good purpose and makes rather for irreverence than reverence—in fact, cheapens the words. He never heard any one, he says, speak reverently of the motto, but instances of irreverence are numerous.

More Testimony: Less Penalty.—St. Louis, Nov. 20.—On the testimony of a 9-year-old girl John H. Dunne has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the penitentiary for the killing of John Cook. Dunne was tried once before and was given twelve years, after he made an alibi his defense. A new trial was obtained and it later was found that the little girl witnessed the crime. This time Dunne pleaded self-defense.

Legislature to Tackle Finances.—Sacramento, Nov. 20.—Governor Gillett decided to call an extraordinary session of the state legislature to convene next Tuesday, Nov. 19, to meet exigencies of the present financial stringency. The principal measure to act on is one extending the time of the payment of taxes in order to prevent the withdrawal of money from circulation.

ILLINOIS GETS IN LINE

Movement Started in the Prairie State for an Academy of Sciences.

WOULD BE OF MUCH BENEFIT

Invitation Extended to Scientists to Meet at Springfield on Dec. 7 for the Purpose of Organizing.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 20.—Illinois is to have an Academy of Sciences. In response to letters sent out by Dr. A. R. Crook, curator of the State Museum of Natural History, more than one hundred men in the different educational institutions of the state have expressed their belief in the need and value of such an organization.

The state is surrounded by academies. Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa have flourishing organizations of this sort, while Illinois has no such society. The proposition is to organize so that Illinois may be as well supplied in this regard as any other state. Within its borders are men famous the world over for work in their respective lines. There are astronomers, physicists, chemists, geologists, botanists and zoologists who have made valuable contributions to the sum of human knowledge. They and their work should be better known at home, and this is one of the purposes of the organization.

Ends To Be Attained.—Some of the ends to be attained by a state academy are set forth as follows in a circular addressed to the men of science in Illinois by Dr. Crook:

"Such an academy will furnish an efficient medium for reaching all the various scientific groups of the state where scientific matters of public interest and common welfare are to be presented.

"At its meetings men of science throughout the state may interchange ideas and make the personal acquaintance of men working perhaps in other lines, or of men known hitherto only by their writings."

"Men of greater achievement and success will inevitably stimulate and encourage beginners and men of less attainments."

"The important contributions to knowledge made by the scientific men of Illinois will be disseminated so well that all of us may learn of the important researches, inventions and applications which are being made by our fellow-citizens."

It is felt that every worker in science in the state, whether teacher or collector, professional or amateur, should be enrolled in the academy. It is proposed to make its list of members a directory of the people who are following science with zeal.

Meeting in Springfield.

A general invitation has been extended to all men and women interested in science to meet in the capitol building at Springfield Saturday, December 7, at 10 a. m., for the purpose of organizing. There will be an afternoon meeting with addresses on the outlook for young men in the various sciences. In the evening there will be a popular lecture on some scientific subject. It is expected that many scientific men will be present and take part in the organization.

The State Museum of Natural History will be the official museum for the academy, and will preserve such objects as the academy would wish to have stored or placed upon exhibition. The value of the museum to the people of the state will be greatly increased if the plans of the curator can be carried out.

The state has left the log-house period of architecture and has reached the time of well-built houses. Its museums are expected to show the same progress. The old-fashioned type in vogue when collections were largely heaps of odds and ends, stored in a garret, covered with dust and unclassified, is no longer countenanced. It is felt that what Illinois needs is a museum that is a store house, a work shop, an institution for entertainment and for the dissemination of knowledge. This can be brought about only if three things happen: First, if there is room for work; second, materials to work with; third, disposition on the part of those to whom the museum is committed to apply themselves with diligence.

Legislature Kills Appropriation.

The first condition bids fair to be met with, since there is a promise that the amount of available floor space will be shortly doubled. The second condition is far removed. The last legislature did not allow one cent for the purchase of materials.

If a modest sum be appropriated by the next legislature, every high school in the state desiring it can have a permanent, well prepared collection, representing the rocks which underlie the whole state. Such a plan can be economically carried out. It will cost one-fifth as much as if the collection were purchased of some dealer.

The office of the museum is a bureau of information to which come questions of all sorts on natural history subjects. If the curator is unable to answer them, he is able to direct the inquirer to some source of information on the subject. Such an office can be influential in promoting the welfare of the people. The center of government should in a way be a center of information, inasmuch as it is accessible to people who otherwise would not know where else to turn.

To many people, even in its present condition, the museum is attractive and interesting. This should be much more the case, and if the museum lives up to its opportunities, it will attract the people to Springfield from hundreds of miles around, since there is nothing of its kind in this part of the state.

Museum Has Many Visitors.—Excursions to Springfield are made by public schools, by various societies and individuals, to see the state house, Lincoln's monument and home, and the new Temple of Justice, where the supreme court will sit. They visit the general assembly while it is in session to gain more accurate knowledge of the workings of our government. They come to see the museum, where they may obtain an idea of the rocks out of which the whole state is survey it was found that there was a large amount of valuable material which should be preserved, so in 1877 an act was passed creating a historical library and natural history museum, and the man who for many years had been state geologist was appointed curator.

The size of the institution grew and the work increased so that in 1899 the two institutions were separated. Since that time the museum has increased in value and importance in spite of fire, of being moved nine times, and of having its collections sent to other institutions. Now it contains not only geological specimens, but also samples of the shifting and vanishing fauna and archeological specimens.

Series of Lectures.—Besides collecting specimens and exhibiting them the museum staff adds to the knowledge of natural science, which citizens busy with their own concerns already have, by lectures upon natural history subjects.

For this purpose an annual lecture course was started last year and proved to be a success. As many as one thousand people were present at the lectures. Men distinguished in their respective lines of work lectured upon geology, botany, chemistry and travel. The interest in the lectures was so great that the course will be repeated this year, and the following program has been arranged:

GOVERNORS OF ILLINOIS

JOHN L. BEVERIDGE—1873-1877.

John L. Beveridge, while elected lieutenant governor, served all but ten days of a whole term as governor, succeeding to the office when Governor Oglesby resigned to become United States senator. He was born July 6, 1824, in Washington county, N. Y., and came to Illinois in 1842, settling in De Kalb county. Three years later he went to Tennessee, where he suffered business reverses, returning to Illinois in 1851. He served in the Eighth Illinois cavalry during the civil war as captain of Company F, which he recruited. He became colonel of the Seventeenth cavalry and was brevetted a brigadier general. He practiced law in Chicago after the war, was elected sheriff of Cook county in 1860 and in 1870 was elected state senator. In 1871 he was elected congressman at large and in 1872 lieutenant governor.

made, of the minerals which furnish its mineral wealth, of the remains of the ancient inhabitants as shown in the archeological exhibits and of the animals and plants of the state. It is possible to give them such entertainment and instruction as they would otherwise be without for the rest of their lives. This information makes them more reasonable, saner and less superstitious, more able to adapt themselves to their environment and adds their in the conquest of nature.

The state is spending millions in caring for the physically and intellectually sick. The museum deals with healthy people and its managers are seeking to have them treated as generously in the matter of museums as does Great Britain, Austria or France. Even as it is, about two thousand people visit the museum some months. During the state fair week within five days nearly two thousand tried to see the collections, but owing to the crowded condition of the aisles were more or less hampered.

Museum Fifty-Six Years Old.

The institution is an old one. It was begun in 1851, when the first state geological survey was started. One of the duties of the state geologist was defined as being to "procure and preserve" a full collection of the different geological specimens of the state. Upon the discontinuance of the Museum a Varied Collection.

The museum has a good collection of birds. There is one large wall case half filled with different kinds of owls. Among the twenty-five samples exhibited are varieties all the way from the little burrowing owl and Saw-whet owl to the Great Horned and the white Snowy owl.

The other half is occupied by such robber birds as the large hawk family, Red-Tailed hawk, Red-Shouldered hawk, Rough-Legged hawk, Marsh hawk, Sparrow hawk, Broad-Winged hawk, the Goshawk, the Osprey, Falcon, the Kites, a handsome group of eagles and various vultures, buzzards and condors.

Three other large wall cases contain several hundred song birds and other varieties which convey an idea of the birds of Illinois.

THAT TROUBLOUS DAM

Governor Delving Into Legal History for Weapons to Fight the Same.

ANOTHER LAW IS DISCOVERED

Makes the State's Road Harder to Travel, However—Deadlock on the Primary Bill.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 20.—Governor Deneen may have some important information on the subject of deep waterways to lay before the general assembly when that body reconvenes in Springfield a week from next Tuesday. Special counsel is now at work making a thorough inquiry into existing conditions and possibilities. With this information in hand the executive will be in a position to present the matter to the assembly in a most comprehensive form, so that it may act intelligently and without fear of unconstitutionality.

Will the Solons Assist?

If the legislature renders the assistance that it is possible to give through legislation he believes there is a strong likelihood of the state being able to overcome all obstacles heretofore presented to a clearance of the proposed deep waterway channel and ership of the water power thus developed.

Some New Law Discovered.

Meantime it has been discovered that legally the water power company seems to have "a cinch." The original grant of 1897 gave the power company the right to use the stream, but reserved to the state the right to take over the stream for a deep waterway without cost to the state. It now develops that by an act passed in 1899 the state is required to pay the Marquette people for any damage to their plant or for its appropriation by the state.

Governor Not Discouraged.

But this fact has not discouraged the executive department. It is pointed out that this will be a trifling matter if it is found that the state may take the executive department. It is pointed out that the state may take the executive department. It is pointed out that the state may take the executive department. It is pointed out that the state may take the executive department.

Deadlock on the Primary Bill.

With the members deadlocked on the manner of selecting national convention delegates and presidential electors, and the applicability of the proposed act to city and village elections still unsettled, the joint legislative conference committee on primary elections has adjourned until Nov. 25.

SENSATIONAL DIVORCE SUIT

Three Co-Respondents Named in the Case of Dr. E. F. Stannus vs. His Wife.

Quincy, Ill., Nov. 20.—The sensational evidence in the divorce case of Dr. Edwin F. Stannus vs. Frances Whaley Stannus is attracting large crowds to the court room. Three co-respondents are named in the bill—Eck E. Brook, a young attorney of Muskegon, I. T.; Ira Rashbach, of Parsons, Kan., and C. Henry Fosgate, proprietor of the Hotel Newcomb, of this city, and of the Mark Twain hotel at Hannibal.

The testimony relating to Fosgate consisted of alleged scenes witnessed through windows of Fosgate's private apartments on the second floor of the Hotel Newcomb by Dr. Stannus and others. Witnesses on behalf of Fosgate, however, testified that it was impossible to see into the room from the street.

Municipal Ownership at Kewanee.

Kewanee, Ill., Nov. 20.—Municipal ownership of a mule was brought to pass here when Kewanee's police department acquired the animal offered as security by John Bradley for payment of part of his fine of $5.20. The mule is old, but has plenty of vitality, and if it continues to live long enough may have the honor some day of hauling Kewanee's first patrol wagon or bearing the city's first mounted policeman.

Disappears Owing $50,000.

Paris, Ill., Nov. 20.—At the request of State's Attorney McNitt, of Coles county, Governor Deneen has authorized a reward of $200 for the capture of Nelson Baber, a piano dealer, who recently has disappeared owing $50,000, with assets of barely 1 per cent on the dollar. Baber is the son of Postmaster Geo. W. Baber, and had stores in Mattoon and Charleston.

KILLED THE WRONG MAN

Says He Wouldn't Care What Becomes of Him if He Had Killed the Right One.

Webb City, Mo., Nov. 20.—Henry Lacey, foreman of the American Beauty mine, who shot and killed W. W. Parker, a young miner boarding at his home, has confessed to the coroner's jury that he had intended killing another man, and through a mistake had killed the wrong man.

He broke down and sobbed: "I wouldn't care what is done to me if I had killed the right man." Lacey accused his intended victim of having caused domestic troubles. He was taken to the jail at Carthage.

Courting Is Prohibited.

Mount Carmel, Ill., Nov. 20.—Driven to desperation by the activity of Cupid among the men and women students of the Southern Illinois College Institute, at Albion, President Hines, of the college, has issued an edict prohibiting his students from courting. The rule also applies to the faculty. The students are indignant.

Papke Knocks Out Caponi.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 15.—Before the Peoria Athletic club Billy Papke knocked out Tony Caponi in the second round of what was scheduled for a ten-round bout. Papke landed a right upper-cut to Caponi's jaw, flooring him completely, and Caponi took the count.

WATTERSON ON BRYAN

Says He Has "Labored" with the Nebraska Man to Decline Nomination.

ROOSEVELT IS A "MEXICANIZER"

According to the View of the Editor from Kentucky.

Just the Man the Bryan Men Want for Republican Leader, He Says—Disagreeable Incident in Oklahoma.

Boone, Ia., Nov. 7.—Colonel Henry Watterson, asked by the Associated Press for his opinion on William J. Bryan's tentative acceptance of the Democratic presidential nomination, declared that he had labored with Bryan to decline the nomination and to quit his "dog in the manger" attitude. Colonel Watterson realized that Bryan had it in his power to demand the leadership of the Democratic party in 1908 or "defeat any other candidate by knifing him as he did Parker." Bryan's acceptance was no more than he had expected, however, greatly as he regretted the action, because he thought Bryan could no longer create enthusiasm, as he had been before the people too many times.

Roosevelt a Mexicanizer? Asked as to the assertion often made that the next president would be Roosevelt or Bryan Colonel Watterson said that the nomination of Roosevelt was all Bryan supporters wanted, because they could then go to the people on the third term slogan. Bryan could carry New England on in such an issue, he thought. Roosevelt would Mexicanize this government, holding himself as greater than Washington.

Names Some Republicans. As for himself, much as he disliked to do so, he would vote for Bryan against Roosevelt in such a dilemma. He believed, however, that Roosevelt would decline another nomination, as he had nothing to gain and the Republican party had many men of presidential caliber. He mentioned especially Taft, Hughes and Crane. He said the latter would make a strong man on the argument that New England has not had a president for a long time.

GOV. FRANTZ TAKES NO PART

Oklahoma Executive Not Present at Haskell's Inauguration.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 7.—Frank Frantz, governor of Oklahoma Territory, did not participate in the ceremonies that were conducted today in ident to the inauguration of Governor-elect Haskell and the Democratic state ticket. His intentions did not become known until the executive committee in charge of the affair invited him to appear in the first carriage in the parade at the side of his successor. He refused emphatically. Urged to take some part in a feature of the inauguration he insisted that he did not wish to be connected in any manner with the ceremonies.

The governor's attitude was the result of charges made during the recent campaign for state officers by Haskell. The territorial executive took particular exception to a speech delivered at Shawnee, in which the Democratic gubernatorial candidate made a personal attack on his rival. The strained situation is all the more noticeable because it is unprecedented. The exigency that is responsible for the flat refusal of an out-going official to participate in the inauguration of the incoming executive is the climax of a heated political campaign.

Discussing the matter Governor Frantz said: "I am not inclined to talk for publication. I simply do not want to take any part whatever in the inauguration. I want to be counted out of it." None of the other outgoing territorial officers was invited to take part in the change from a territorial government to a state by the committee on arrangements.

TOM JOHNSON IS IN LINE

Expresses Satisfaction at Bryan's Presidential Announcement.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 7.—In an open letter to William J. Bryan expressing satisfaction with Bryan's announcement as to the presidential nomination, Mayor Tom L. Johnson says he will endeavor to secure an Ohio delegation to the national Democratic convention that will call upon Bryan again to be Democracy's candidate for the presidency. The mayor declares he is not an aspirant for the nomination.

The letter also says: "Both in spirit and form it is worthy of you and of our Democratic cause. This declaration is the one thing needed to secure to the Democratic party the benefit of its best leadership in the coming campaign."

LAST HOURS OF BARNEY

All Passed Consistently Devoted to Settling His Earthly Affairs.

New York, Nov. 7.—Mortally wounded by his own hand, Charles Tracy Barney summoned his family and lawyers to his bedside, and after calmly reviewing his business and private affairs, and giving minute expression of his wishes in certain matters, dictated and signed a will in which his wife was made the principal beneficiary. This matter disposed of the operation through which his physicians had hoped to save his life. A half hour after the lawyers withdrew the ex-head of the Knickerbocker Trust company was dead.

It was given out at the house upon the death of Barney that the dying man had said nothing further than the remark, repeated later by Dr. George A. Dixon: "Doctor, this is an accident." Attorney Milbank now states that after Barney shot himself and was found senseless on his bed he was restored to consciousness. He remained conscious two hours. Those two hours were devoted to making his will and giving a few last directions as to his business. Before the financial trouble Barney's fortune was between $7,000,000 and $9,000,000. Now it is about $2,500,000.

FEDERATION'S RESOLUTIONS

Some of the Propositions That Have Been Adopted by the F. of L. Convention.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 7.—The American Federation of Labor has adopted resolutions as follows: Directing its legislative committee to use every influence to bring about action in the Sixtieth congress for the increase of postoffice clerks' pay. Calling upon congress for a small parcels post law as a relief from the "express company monopoly," asking that the "theatrical syndicates" be included as amenable under the anti-trust laws "in restraint of trade."

Resolutions calling upon congress to give navy yard employees injured while in pursuit of their duty the same remedy at law in damages as enjoyed by persons in private employ, and those calling for the legalizing of Saturday half holidays for navy yard employees in July, August and September of every year, were referred back to committees for revision so as to include all classes of government employees.

Surprising Semple.

By WILLIAM F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

"Mrs. Greer will look after the canary, but you will surely look after the plants, won't you?" pleaded Mrs. Semple. "Those plants are such beauties it would be a pity to have them die."

"They won't," assured Semple. "One plant to each plant. I remember." "You're a dear!" she exclaimed. "It's awfully good of you, Ned, to let me go when you won't even have a teeny vacation yourself. I feel almost ashamed of myself leaving you all alone in the hot city."

"You have the time of your life," ordered Semple. "I'll be all right. Don't you worry about me."

"I have such a surprise for you," she said, smiling through the tears that filled her eyes. "I want you to write and tell me just how you like it."

"What's the surprise? I'll bet it's a cat."

"Better than that and not half the trouble," she declared.

"There's my train being called. It's a shame they will not let you pass the gate. Kiss me again, dear, and do be careful of yourself."

As Semple kissed her not once, but half a dozen times. He worshiped this dainty little woman who had lifted him out of bachelorhood and boarding houses and had made home a bit of paradise on earth. He hated to give her up for a whole six weeks, but he could not get away from town himself, and she needed the rest and change.

He waited until the train pulled out of the station and went back to the hot and stuffy office. It was no hardship to work when he worked for her, and there were certain deals that could not be neglected. If these deals went through they would both go to Europe next year, and the occasional problem of where the money for bills was to be found would be solved.

He remained at the office later than usual to make up for the time he had lost over their last lunch together. The occasional charwoman only made the desolation of the huge office building seem more pronounced. The elevators stopped at 8, and it was after 9 when he descended interminable flights of steps, and the sense of depression grew upon him.

In the street the open cars whizzed past crowded with tired workers who found in the speeding trolleys the breeze that could not be coaxed into their stuffy rooms. Whole families lilted some of the cross benches, and Semple thought regretfully of how only two nights before he and Alida had taken a ride in the cool of the evening, going clear to the end of the run and stopping at the restaurant for a bite to eat.

He did not feel hungry tonight, though he had had no dinner. He left the car at his corner and crept up the stairs to his apartment.

By this time he was thoroughly blue, and the darkness of the place crowned his misery. As he opened the hall door he seemed to hear her voice call a cheery "Good evening, dear. I hope you had an easy day. Did you?"

Could it be possible, he asked himself, that Alida had come back? She might be hiding in one of the closets. He lighted the gas in every room, but he could find no trace of her save in the orderly neatness which worked all for his comfort.

He went back to the parlor and puffed thoughtfully at his pipe. In his low nervous state but one explanation of the phenomenon was suggested. Alida was dead, and in her love she had come to greet him. So thoroughly wrought up did he become that he telephoned the railroad company to ask if the train had been wrecked.

The response did not seem to soothe his ruffled feelings if it did reassure his anxiety, and at last he went to bed, only to toss restlessly. Sleep did not come until absolute physical exhaustion closed his eyes.

It seemed scarcely five minutes before the alarm clock rang, and he dragged himself out of bed. Alida had left coffee and crackers and condensed milk in the house, and he slipped a cup of coffee while he searched the morning paper for news of a wreck.

He could find nothing of the sort, and at last he started for the office. As he opened the door Alida's voice rang in his ears again: "Goodby, dear. I hope you have luck today."

It was what she always said, and, although it did not sound exactly like her voice, there was no mistaking certain tricks of speech. He hastily closed the door and hurried down the steps. There was a telegraph office at the corner, and he sent a telegram asking her to wire her safe arrival. In the office building was the booth of another company, and he sent a second dispatch. She was not due at her destination for a full two hours yet, and he could not hope to receive a message before noon, but he paced the office impatiently, unable to concentrate his attention upon anything except the lagging hands of the clock.

At last the blue uniformed boy appeared with a yellow envelope and departed richer by a half dollar tip. He was back in an hour with another message that ran: "Both telegrams received." Telegraphed upon arrival. Of course nothing is the matter."

The assurance brought contentment, and that afternoon Semple put through an important deal. In his elation he dined at their favorite restaurant, and it was late when he reached home. The same ghostly voice greeted him and dashed his pleasure. He moodily smoked his pipe until late, and the unusual allowance of tobacco wrought further havoc upon his tired nerves.

The natural result was a dream in which he vividly saw Alida swathed in bandages, alternately calling to him and begging the attendants not to let him know her peril lest it interfere with the consummation of his plans.

It was clear that in her longing for him her spirit projected itself through space and that same self denial which had led her to keep back the news of her danger led her to give the old familiar greeting and farewell. Her spirit must be in the room.

On the way to the office he telegraphed her that he knew something must be wrong and that unless he received definite information at once he would leave on the next train.

The answer was a dual one. In addition to a long telegram his chum Ben Bradley put in an appearance, Bradley fenced for awhile with small talk, but at last he came to the point.

"Do you feel all right, old man?" he asked anxiously. "I had a wire from your wife. She seemed to think something was wrong."

"I am all right," said Semple wearily. "I've been nervous and dispirited and I got imagining things, I guess."

He could not tell even Bradley what he feared, but he was at last convinced that all was well with Alida, and he was content.

Bradley turned up after office hours that evening and carried him off to dinner. "Mrs. Bradley is visiting friends in the country today," he explained, "and I need company. I'll come around to your apartments afterward, and we'll have a good old time chat."

Semple brightened visibly at the suggestion, and when at last they reached home he opened the door confidently. His face went ghastly white as the voice floated out upon the air. He turned to see if Bradley had heard.

Bradley stood there with a smile upon his face. "That's a great idea, isn't it?" was his surprising comment. "What's an idea?" asked Semple vaguely.

"Why, that phonograph," explained Bradley. "It's a German invention to be used in stores. When the door opens the phonograph announces the bargains of the day. A little alteration fixed this one so that the two messages could be given, one in the morning and the other when you came home. I was telling Mrs. Semple about it the night she was over to see my wife, and she had it fixed up as a surprise for you. I bet it was a starter, wasn't it?"

"It was," said Semple dryly, wondering how near to insanity he had been. "It was a decided surprise." Then he added to himself, "Now that I know it's going to be a comfort too."

The Dry Falls of Lodore.

Southey's description of Lodore has given to that charming friend of holiday days a reputation which is a little unfortunate. It has brought to its course worshippers from afar, when there has not been a cupful of water to perform as much as the meanness of feats which the poet describes. One such visitor was an American. He had seen Niagara again and again. He read Southey on the wonders of Lodore and once more visited the vast cataract of his native land. Then, feeling that, after all, Niagara must be very small potatoes compared with the falls of which the poet had sung, he came to England in quest of Lodore, resolved to consecrate his holiday to the contemplation of its beauties and grandeur. He set out the moment he reached Keswick and long walked and toiled over rocks and boulders. He could not find the falls. He rested and asked a native, "Can you direct me to the falls of Lodore?" "Why, you're a settlin' on 'em," was the heartbreaking answer. The falls of all the adjectives were dry!—St. James' Gazette.

Our Flight Through Space.

Vega is the star toward which our sun is ceaselessly rushing through the infinite regions of space, carrying the earth and all of the other planets with him. Though we are pursuing this journey at the speed of eleven miles a second, so that at the end of each day we are almost 1,000,000 miles nearer the star than we were at the beginning, yet at least 1,000,000 years will elapse before we overtake and drift past this great sun. Were the life of man on earth not so short, how wonderfully would he see the face of the heavens change as he passed through our universe of stars. The Great Dipper, the Northern Cross and even the Milky Way itself would appear to take new forms as he passed on and viewed them from a different direction, and as he drew near the blue star Vega, a sun enormously larger and hotter than our own, it would shine out with extraordinary brilliancy.

To the Point.

In a Tennessee court an old colored woman was put on the witness stand to tell what she knew about the annihilation of a hog by a railway train. Being sworn, she was asked if she had seen the train kill the hog in question.

"Yes, sah, I seed it."

"Then," said counsel, "tell the court in as few words as possible just how it occurred."

"Yo' honor," responded the old lady, "I shore kin tell yo' in a few words. It jes' tooted an' tuck him."—Cleveland Leader.

PRODUCTION OF COAL

Illinois Bureau of Labor Statistics Reveals Some Interesting Facts.

GREAT CHANGE IN TEN YEARS

Annual Production of Coal in State Has Increased Over 18,000,000 Tons During That Time—Needs of the Bureau.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 10.—In its twenty-fifth annual report the Illinois Bureau of Labor Statistics makes a suggestion which may become the basis of future legislative action in the way of extending the work of the bureau. Attention is called to the fact that, because of insufficient funds, it has not been possible to keep a continuous and complete record of all the productive interests of the state, and it is urged that this be done.

The bureau has, for twenty-five years, kept a record of the coal industry, and its thoroughness and value is unquestionably a strong argument in favor of recording, with similar detail, the statistics of other industries. This record is also an index to the great amount of work done in one of the modest departments of the state government, concerning which the general public has heard very little. The record is interesting as well as valuable.

There has been a wonderful growth in the production of coal in Illinois since the first report was issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Then it was 11,017,069 tons annually; now it is 33,317,581 tons. Then 20,200 men were given employment in the industry; now the number of men employed is 62,283.

Great Change in Ten Years.

The record of the bureau shows that the greatest progress in the business of coal mining has been made since the year 1897. During these ten years the annual production has increased 18,222,823 tons, or 91 per cent. With this growth there has been a wonderful change in the industry, both material and social. New methods have been adopted in mining and the men are surrounded with conditions which were not dreamed of twenty-five years ago.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has played an important part in the changes which have come about. Many of the new methods employed are the result of investigations and information secured through the department. It has been active, too, in securing better things for the men employed in the industry, and the mining laws for the protection of life and property are either its work or the result of information and statistics collected by the department.

It is now ten years since the present administration of the bureau took hold. During the intervening period the uniform work day of eight hours has been established in the industry; the wages of miners have increased, in some instances 100 per cent; the so-called truck system has been abolished; the gross-weight plan of paying miners has gone into effect, and numerous abuses which caused friction between the miners and operators have been obliterated. These things, for the most part, have been brought about by the organization, both of miners and operators, but those connected with the state bureau claim a share of the credit for initiating and assisting in bringing about many reforms.

Careless Use of Powder.

An example of what the bureau is accomplishing along this line is given in the comment made in the annual report on a single item of the statistics. This has to do with the amount of powder used in the mines and as showing the practical character of the department's work it is valuable. After quoting figures from one of the statistical tables in the detailed report, the following observations are made:

"The table shows that 1,027,373 kegs of powder were used, producing an average of 33.25 tons per keg. Where the mining is done exclusively by machines the product was 101 tons. In the powder-using mines where machines are not employed the product was 27 tons to the keg."

"These figures cannot be construed in any other light than a criticism either of the qualification of the men now employed in the mines or as a rebuke to their work methods. It requires no further inquiry to condemn any system of mining necessitating the use of powder where the actual results, as in this case, yield but a fraction over one ton to every pound of powder burned."

"These facts, regrettable as they are, fully confirm and justify, in the interest of life, the necessity for and the wisdom of that provision of the recent law requiring that all employees shall be out of the mines during the process of blasting. In the face of such a situation, the merest consideration for human welfare demands that an unskilled hand should not be permitted to touch a deadly explosive where the life of an innocent person may be involved."

In this same connection the bureau makes a recommendation which is illustrative of the influence it has been able to exert in securing legislation for the betterment of mine conditions. It suggests a new plan for the handling of explosives in mines which contemplated the employment of a corps of practical men in each mine. In support of this proposition the bureau quotes from its statistics to prove that the system suggested is feasible and says:

Saving of Life Important.

"This system would leave to the so-called miners the work chiefly of loading coal, a task for which only most of them are adapted. Nothing short of a plan of this kind will solve the problems which the situation presents. It is a useless waste of valuable time enacting laws requiring that only so much powder shall be used, that drill holes shall be made at a certain angle from the free face of the coal, etc."

"These are terms that only those educated in the business understand, and but very few of that class are now in the mines. Such regulations might be effective if made for the guidance of intelligent men specially fitted for that work, but not otherwise. Objections to the plan here suggested, which is in fact but an extension and completion of the present system of shot firing, may be urged on the ground of expense, and that whether the operator, the miner, or both contribute to meet it."

"A sufficient reply to such an argument is furnished on facts which show that the saving of life is a consideration more important than the saving of dollars. The work of drilling holes and preparing shots would add considerably to the present duties of the shot-drillers and consequently require the employment of more men, probably three times the number now employed in that connection."

"Would this necessarily mean more expense? The purpose of the plan is not alone to save life through the more careful and intelligent preparation of shots, but also to avoid the loss consequent upon the burning of so much unnecessary powder. This report shows that 1,027,373 kegs of powder, equal to 33,000 tons, were burned in the mines this year, being an increase of nearly 90,000 kegs over 1905."

Urges Trained Shot-Firers.

"Powder at prevailing prices sells for $1.75 per keg of twenty-five pounds. According to this calculation the miners paid in 1906 for powder alone nearly $1,800,000. Much of this property, representing great value, was practically wasted in the hands of incompetent men. It is entirely safe to state that fully one-half of the powder used was burned, not in making, but in destroying coal."

"If the use of powder in the hands of trained men could perform double the work, as we think it would, then under the present practice the direct money loss to the miners was equal to $900,000; saying nothing of the loss sustained by the mining plant, and the consuming public, accruing from the production of an inferior quality of coal. Instead of an additional expense under the plan proposed the saving effected would prove the best financial investment the mining industry could make."

The statistics collected by the bureau concerning the loss of life in mines are an interesting feature of the report. Figures are given from fourteen coal-producing states, including Great Britain, and Illinois stands twelfth in the number of lives lost, based upon the amount of coal produced. Considering that Illinois stands next to Pennsylvania as a coal-producing state, this is regarded as a creditable showing, but the bureau suggests that proper regulations would further reduce the loss of life. Concerning the effect of the new shot-drillers law passed in 1905 the report says:

"While the experience of this first year under the shot-drillers' law sustains the contention that its adoption would diminish the number of fatalities due to such causes, it would be unfair to confine our judgment of the ultimate effects of the law's operation to the results shown by the present year for the reason that many of those accepting the position of shot-driller had no previous experience in such work; besides, the greater number of lives were lost and the most property destroyed in consequence of firing shots drilled in the solid in entries or other narrow work."

"This practice was in open violation of the word and spirit of the law, which prohibits anyone from drilling or shooting what is known as a dead hole. Had this provision of the law been observed the lives of many of the shot-drillers who were killed would have been spared. Unfortunately in the case of a few, their deaths were due either to ignorance of their duties or gross and inexcusable negligence. There is every reason to expect, partly from a better knowledge of the work and the exercise of greater care, that the number of accidents from these causes in the future will be reduced to a minimum."

"Accidents, particularly in an occupation as hazardous as that of coal mining, seems to sustain a certain relation to the volume of the product and the number of men employed. Both as to men and tons the number employed and the output this year exceed that of any similar period, while compared with the record of the last few years there has been a substantial reduction in the number of fatalities resulting from the use of powder."

Summary for the Year 1906.

The report shows that coal was mined in 54 counties, where 1018 mines were operated. The number of new or old mines opened during the year was 151. The total output of all mines in tons of 2,000 pounds was 33,317,581. The total number of employees engaged in these mines was 62,283. The average price paid per gross ton for hand mining was $0.5702 and for machine mining $0.442. The number of men accidentally killed during the year was 155, of which number 147 were killed inside and 8 outside the mines.
